Trade Act Extension Hearings Open Today

Administration Also Seeks to Undo Crippling Curbs Put in by GOP

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr.
Post Reporter

The new Truman Administration will make its first move on Capitol Hill this morning toward getting congressional approval of its foreign policy.

• Assistant Secretary of State Willard Thorp will appear before the House Ways and Means Committee in a public hearing to ask for a three-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act.

He will also ask the committee, newly strengthened by the appointment of six stanchly Democratic members, to undo the "crippling" restrictions written into the existing act by the Republican Eightieth Congress.

Reversion to Hull Era Sought

Last year the Republican majority extended for only one year the President's power to negotiate tariff reductions with foreign countries. It also insisted, over bitter Administration protests, on a cumbersome procedure by which presidential action in each case must await a report by the United States Tariff Commission.

The Administration now wants these limitations wiped out, and wants the act restored to the form it had when Secretary Cordell Hull administered it during the New Deal years.

There will be loud Republican objections, but the Administration is confident that it has the votes, both in the congressional committees and on the floor of the two Houses.

An Administration "Must"

President Truman mentioned the three-year extension specifically in his recent messages, and during the election campaign he chided the Republicans for having paralyzed the tariff-reduction program.

Revision and extension of the act is an Administration "must," both in timing and in substance. Now that Europe's production is rising with the help of Marshall Plan funds, the Administration sees clearly that the United States and other countries must 'ake more European products if economic recovery is to be achieved.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee strongly favors the proposed changes, and hopes to finish the hearings within a few days. Chairman Walter F. George (D., Ga.) has given asurances that his Senate Finance Committee will be ready for speedy action whenever the House sends him the revised bill.

There are two main reasons why the Administration hopes for quick action by Congress.

First, it is starting trade agreement negotiations with 11 countries, and wants to free them of the delays and restrictions imposed by the present law. Beginning Tuesday the Tariff Commission will hold hearings at which American businessmen can complain about the proposed concessions.

Secondly, the Administration hopes Congress will soon ratify the charter of the International

Patterson Warns Nations to Study Red Peace Moves

New York, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—Judge Robert P. Patterson, former Secretary of War, warned tonight that the democracies should beware of the rumored Soviet peace offensive.

Patterson, president of Freedom House, spoke at a Carnegie Hall benefit performance for the Willkie Memorial Building.

"While we welcome every step to bring about lasting peace to the world, we must warn our democratic friends to beware of the gifts which these emissaries bear. It would prove a bad day if we became so gullible that at the slightest whisper from the Kremlin we were lulled into a false sense of security," Patterson said.

University Upholds Purge

Professors Fight Red Ouster, Demand Association Intervene

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Herbert Phillips Ralph Gundlach Joseph Butterworth
Dismissed by University of Washington After Communist Probe

Seattle, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—Three University of Washington professors, fired after being accused of Communist activity, said today they would appeal to the American Association of University Professors to intervene in their behalf.

The university's seven-man Board of Regents last night dismissed Ralph H. Gundlach, 46, associate professor of psychology; Herbert J. Phillips, 57, assistant professor of philosophy, and Joseph Butterworth, 51, an associate professor in the English department.

Board Chairman Joseph Drumheller, Spokane, said the regents' action "serves notice everywhere throughout the country that the University of Washington is notifying Communists to stay away from this campus."

Three other professors were retained under two-year probation on the condition that they sign affidavits that they are not now members of the Communist Party.

They are E. Harold Eby, 48, professor of English; Garland Ethel, 50, assistant professor of English, and Melville Jacobs, 46, associate professor of anthropology.

In his report to the Board of Regents, University President Dr. Raymond B. Allen said he recommended the dismissals because he believes that "a Communist is incompetent to teach the truth."

"Clandestine activity such as Joseph Butterworth's and Herbert Philips' in the Communist Party means that they have forsaken their duty to protect the university's integrity and pursue an objective quest of truth in favor of a propagandistic mission entirely unrelated to real educational and scholarly effort," he said.

"An important function of the university is to teach citizenship.

Discharges Over Loyalty To Be Fought

Ex-U. S. Employes Retain Rogge Firm To Test Legality Of Truman's Order

New York, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—A group of Federal workers, fired or suspended under President Truman's loyalty order, announced yesterday that they had banded together and hired a law firm to fight the order through the courts.

The group, called the Federal Employes Defense Committee, called on Federal employes throughout the country to join in their proposed action.

The law firm of Rogge, Fabricant, Fordon and Goldman of New York, headed by former Assistant United States Attorney General O. John Rogge, has been retained to test the constitutionality of the loyalty order, the group said.

[Bertram A. Washington, president of the Cleveland branch of the National Alliance of Postal Workers, was quoted by the Associated Press as saying an injunction suit seeking to hold up enforcement of the loyalty order would be filed in the District of Columbia.

[A score of the Cleveland union's members face discharge on loyalty grounds, it was said. Washington is one of the principal organizers of the new committee.]

"This case has nothing to do with communism or whether the Communist Party or any other group is or is not subversive," Rogge said. "The sole issue is failure of the Government, in its search for disloyal employes, to provide adequate safeguards for individuals against malicious gossip, racial and religious prejudice and anonymous informants."

Rogge charged that the order reverses the whole American concept of justice by assuming that the accused is guilty until he proves himself innocent and denies the accused the right to confront and examine the witnesses against him.

"It deprives Government employes and people who want to be Government employes of their constitutional rights of free speech, free assembly, free thought and free association," Rogge declared. "It gives the attorney general the extraordinary and dangerous power to decide, without benefit of judicial process or review, what organizations are subversive and, therefore, a political sin to join. It makes past membership in organizations which were perfectly legal at the time punishable by dismissal."

More Power For Defense Chief Sought

Tentative Proposals Of Hoover Group Would Curb Heads Of Three Services

By The Associated Press

The Hoover Commission is working on drastic recommendations to strengthen the power of the Secretary of Defense and reduce the heads of the Army, Navy and Air Force to "Undersecretaries," it was learned yesterday.

This would involve shifting the trio's authority to the Defense Chief and cut off their direct contact with the President.

The proposals go far beyond the recommendations of the commission's own "task force" studying the national military establishment where service rivalries often burst forth.

Meanwhile, in the House today, hearings will begin on President Truman's urgent request for permanent powers to reorganize Government, subject to congressional veto. The Executive Expenditures Committee will take up the proposal which follows a suggestion of Hoover himself that the Chief Executive have such authority to increase efficiency and cut costs.

The Hoover body, officially named the Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government, is due to make its general report to Congress within two weeks.

Whether the details of its military plans will be made public then or later, was not known. It has given long debate to the defense establishment, however, and is reported to have reached tentative agreement on these recommendations:

1. Focus supreme authority in the Secretary of Defense, including greater power over the crucial question of budgets for the three fighting arms.

2. Create four undersecretaries. There would be one each for the Army, Navy and Air Force. The fourth would be a "general manager" to relieve the Secretary of administrative burdens and act in his absence.

3. Let the authority now held directly by the Army, Air and Navy heads be vested instead in the Secretary of Defense. He in turn would delegate it to the service undersecretaries.

4. By the foregoing change, remove from the Army, Navy and Air heads the right to appeal to the President from decisions of the Defense Secretary.

Red Army Is 15 Miles From Chiang Capital; China Surrender Seen

Acting President Institutes Reforms In Hope of Softer Terms From Foes

Nanking, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—Red troops drove almost to the banks of the Yangtze River today and it appeared the Communists soon might be able to enforce their total surrender demands at gunpoint.

High Nationalist military quarters admitted the Communists might reach the north bank of the Yangtze at any time and begin shelling the capital city.

Informed sources said four Red columns hurrying southward along the Tientsin-Pukow railway had passed Liuho, only 15 miles northeast of Nanking, and Chuhsien, 30 miles to the northwest.

Acting President Li Tsung-jen instituted a series of sweeping social, political and economic reforms hoping to make peace negotiations easier and to soften the Communists' harsh surrender terms. However, he still appeared willing to bargain on the Reds' terms.

Occupation Peaceful

The occupation of Peiping was proceeding peacefully and the Communists put up large posters reassuring the residents that order would be maintained.

The United States Embassy here said it had no word from Peiping, but assumed Americans there were still safe.

Reports from Ningpo, 200 miles south of Shanghai, said Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was spending a peaceful Sunday with his relatives in his ancestral home at Chikow and might remain there until Chinese New Year, January 29.

Peace efforts were at a virtual standstill as the government awaited a reply from the Communists, who are in a position to dictate when and where peace talks will be held. Newly captured Peiping was reported to be the Communists' choice.

Press dispatches and reliable private information reported panicky Nationalist evacuation of a string of towns along a stretch of the Yangtze from north of Nanking to the mouth of the river below Shanghai.

The Communists were not expected to attempt to cross the river in force and attack Nanking, but were expected instead to bombard the capital into submission.

At Pukow, just across the milewide river from Nanking, refugees tried to jam their way across the river and all police there were mobilized to maintain order.

The Social Welfare Daily said Communist forces were speeding along the Grand Canal toward the Yangtze in several columns and the government admitted the evacuation of key points only 8 miles above the Yangtze.

The Communist radio reported the occupation on January 21 of Hofei, capital of Anhwei Province,

At Conference on Indonesia

Nehru Asserts Asia Intends To Play Part in Global Affairs

New Delhi, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—Indian Prime Minister Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru told the closing session of the Pan-Asian Conference on Indonesia today that "Asia wants to play her part in global affairs and fully intends to do so."

Nehru spoke after the 19-nation conference formally approved a resolution asking the United Nations Security Council to set up a timetable leading to full independence of the United States of Indonesia by January 1, 1950. Nehru sent the resolution to the U. N. with a letter declaring effective U. N. action is "overdue."

Nehru called the conference the "forerunner of even greater cooperation among Asian nations" and said that beyond the Indonesian question—in which the conference demanded end of Dutch imperialism in Asia by the end of this year—"there is also a wider community of interest and thought among us."

He added that whatever new role Asia plays in world affairs it would be one of "peace and cooperation."

Philippine Delegate Carlos Romulo drew enthusiastic applause

Flour Drops, Bread Prices Still at Peak

Wheat Also Down 30 Pct.; Inefficient Production Blamed

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The retail price of bread is now at an all-time high, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported last night, although during 1948 the price of wheat went down 30 per cent and the price of flour went down 15 per cent.

The reason, BAE reported, after an extended study, is because the milling and baking industries have not expanded in line with the increasing population. "The excess capacity in the milling and baking industries now is relatively small," the report says.

The result, it adds, is that competition between baking firms is small. "In other words," BAE says, "there has been very little incentive to draw customers from one plant to another by means of a price appeal to the customers."

The price of bread reached the record high average of 14.5 cents in February, 1948. The retail price of flour reached a record high the month before of 9.6 cents a pound. Farmers at that time were getting a record price of $2.81 a bushel for wheat.

"Over a period of years, the prices farmers get for their wheat has tended to move in the same direction as the retail prices of flour and of bread."

"However, between January and October, 1948, the national average local market price of wheat dropped 30 per cent; the retail price of flour dropped 15 per cent, but the retail price of bread rose 0.7 per cent."

Last October the wheat farmer was only getting about 3 cents out of every 14.5-cent loaf of bread. Of this, 2½ cents was for wheat and half a cent for other ingredients. The miller got 0.8 cents; and the baker and retailer 9.7 cents. The other cent went to elevators, railroad or other costs.

Seven Leaders Arrested

Frankfurt, Germany, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—The United States Air Force announced tonight that seven European ringleaders have been arrested in a crackdown on smugglers who have been draining up to two hundred million dollars yearly from western Germany. None were named.

Officials said several Americans were involved.

New Blizzard Sweeps Seven Cattle States

Utah's Million Head Of Stock in Peril; Nevada Awaits Aid

Chicago, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—A new blizzard roared through the tortured western range States today and Utah called an emergency meeting to grapple with its tragic livestock problem.

Snow driven by strong northerly winds swept Utah, Montana, Colorado, Wyoming, Nebraska and the Dakotas.

In Utah alone more than one million cattle and sheep were in need of food, and Nevada was in a state of emergency to succor its starving stock.

Feedlift Delayed

The new storm delayed Air Force efforts to start a feedlift. Military attempts to provide more snow plows also were slowed.

However, 17 Air Force C-82 planes were scheduled to take off from Sacramento, Calif., early Monday to carry feedlift aid to Nevada. Officials said the planes would fly to Fallon and Ely, Nev., to pick up feed and ranchers who will direct the drops.

The storm spread across Utah, the northern Rocky Mountain States and into Nebraska and the Dakotas in an eastward and southward surge. With the storm was sub-zero cold that plunged the mercury to 21 below zero at Lemmon, S. Dak.

Margaret Truman Engages Manager For 1949-50 Season

By the United Press

The White House announced yesterday that the President's daughter, Margaret, a coloratura soprano, has signed a contract with James A. Davidson of New York "as her manager in concert and allied fields" for the 1949-50 season.

Davidson, who manages such artists as Helen Traubel, Eleanor Steber and Jeannette MacDonald, said he expects to arrange "a limited number of recitals for Miss Truman beginning in October."

Intimates have said Margaret wanted to return to her musical carer as soon as the right opportunity presented itself. They say her goal is the Metropolitan Opera.

Held Two Months In Jail by Dutch, 2 Americans Say

Singapore (Monday), Jan. 24 (U.P.).—Two young American yachtsmen and one Canadian were held incommunicado in a Dutch jail in Batavia, Java, for two months with no charges filed against them, one of them charged today. They were Philip J. Stacey, 26, Regina, Saskatchewan; Robert Smith, 25, Portland, Oreg., and Foster Pineo, jr., 22 of Snohomish, Wash.

Stacey said the Dutch refused to explain their arrests.

The three were trying to sail from Singapore to Manila. They were picked up by a Dutch patrol boat 20 miles off the coast of Dutch West Borneo.

Stacey described the Batavia jail as a "concentration camp where we practically starved.

"They apparently thought we were trying to aid the escape of three Americans held for arms smuggling."

Coudert Proposes 2 Billion to Aid Slum Clearance

By The Associated Press

Legislation proposing two billion dollars of Federal aid funds for a 10-year slum clearance-Housing program will be introduced today in the House by Representative Coudert (R., N. Y.).

Coudert said that his proposed measure "stages the broadest attack yet undertaken against blighted areas."

"It is solely directed to slum clearance," he said, "and requires as a condition of aid, a specific program to wipe out a blighted area and rehouse dislocated families and veterans at rents within their means in the reclaimed area or elsewhere."

The measure, he said, contains many features "without precedent" in housing legislation and is based upon the obstacles which have blocked full use of Federal assistance in the past.

Relations Not Completely Broken

Venezuela Declares Chile Unfriendly, Withdraws Envoy

Caracas, Venezuela, Jan. 21 (Delayed) (AP).—Venezuela charged Chile with "unfriendly conduct" tonight and announced the withdrawal of the Venezuelan ambassador from Santiago.

Diplomatic sources said the ambassador's recall does not mean a rupture of relations between the two countries "but is very close to it." They added the withdrawal of the Chilean ambassador from Caracas would be a logical reaction.

The Foreign Ministry accused the Chilean government of interfering in matters beyond its province by asking the Council of the Organization of American States to consider Venezuela's "negligence" in not granting former President Romulo Betancourt permission to leave the country.

Betancourt took refuge in the Colombian Embassy in Caracas after the November 24 military coup which overthrew the regime of President Romula Callegos.

At Santiago sources close to the Chilean government said tonight Chile is expected to announce the withdrawal of Chilean Ambassador Rodrigo Gonzalez from Caracas, Monday.

(A few hours after the communiques were issued Betancourt arrived in Willemstad, Curacao, with his wife and daughter en route to exile in Colombia. He headed a revolutionary junta in Venezuela from 1945 until Gallegos took over as elected president in 1948.)

The Venezuelan foreign ministry said it had reason to believe the Chilean demand in Washington for an extraordinary meeting of the Inter-American Council was made after Chile knew safe conduct had been given Betancourt.

Venezuela's representative in Washington was instructed to inform the American States Council that the organization lacks jurisdiction in the case.

Previously all persons who took refuge in various embassies were permitted to leave Venezuela. Betancourt apparently was considered too influential to be permitted to depart until the political situation became more normal.

Council to Consider Chilean Complaint Today

By The Associated Press

The Council of the Organization of American States will meet today to discuss the Chilean complaint against Venezuela.

Despite word that Betancourt has now been allowed to leave Venezuela, council officials did not call off today's session.

2 Die, 5 Hurt In Air Crash At Andrews

C-45 Comes in Too Low, Smashes Up on 3rd Landing Attempt

Two men were killed and five were injured in a plane crash at Andrews Air Base last night on a proficiency air test trip.

Capt. William Lookadoo, Bolling Base public relations officer, said the crash occurred at 8:35 p. m. when a C-45 came in too low on a third landing attempt and crashed a half mile from the main air strip.

Names of the dead, both crew members, were withheld.

Among those injured was Lt. William Fenton, 28, of Deer Park, Long Island, a member of the Fourth Fighter Group at Andrews. Fenton, a noted acrobatic pilot, is in critical condition.

Also critically hurt was Technical Sergt. Leo Majewski, 30, the crew chief. His home is at Chicago.

Others injured were Col. Howard Nussbaum, 38, chief of the radio and television branch of the Air Forces public information division. A passenger in the plane, he is from New York.

Seaman Rudy E. Purcell, 18, of Indianapolis.

Seaman Jim Messer, 19, of Springfield, Mass. Messer and Purcell are assigned to the USS Mindoro, a destroyer at Norfolk, Va.

Ethridge to Join U. N. Palestine Commission

By The Associated Press

Mark Ethridge, publisher of the Louisville (Ky.) Times and Courier-Journal, said last night he had accepted an appointment to the United Nations Palestine Conciliation Commission.

Ethridge plans to leave for Palestine "in about 10 days."

Diplomatic sources said President Truman had offered Ethridge the job, but the White House declined to confirm or deny it.

The U. N. established the commission last December.

Ethridge, who arrived from Louisville yesterday, previously served on a U. N. Balkans commission.

The Palestine commission in general is expected to take over the work of Acting Mediator Dr. Ralph Bunche.

Rightists Win Jap Election But Reds Gain

Nineteen Communists Victors in Diet Race, Including 'Brains'

Tokyo, (Monday), Jan. 24 (AP).—Nineteen Communists won seats Sunday in Japan's next Diet, a gain of 15 seats for the party in the lawmaking body.

The otherwise dominantly conservative results found Sanso Nozaka, Moscow-trained Communist Party "brains," clinching a seat in Tokyo's first district with a big vote of 49,848. He became the third of the four Communist incumbents to win.

The successful Communists polled 319,909 votes.

Premier Shigeru Yoshida's arch-conservative Democratic-Liberal Party dominated the field with at least 152 members elected. The Democratic Party, also conservative, was second with 32. A total of 466 seats are at stake.

Former Prime Minister Hitoshi who is under indictment for alleged bribery in office, was re-elected from Kyoto. He was released from a penitentiary on bail in time to campaign.

A surprisingly heavy vote of around 70 per cent of those eligible was recorded.

Kazuyoshi Dobashi, head of the Communication Workers Union and who recently joined the Communist Party openly, and Kiyuchi Tokuda, secretary general of the Japanese Communist Party, had good leads.

Mrs. Shizue Kato, a Social Democrat who is noted for her birth control activities, ran strongly in the second district.

One of the defeated candidates was 48-year-old Harue Yamashita, Democratic woman candidate from Kyushima prefecture, who caused an uproar in the Diet when she accused Finance Minister Sanroku Izumiyuma of making love to her in the cloakroom. Izumiyama did not run for reelection.

Czechs Say Spy Letters Bare U. S. Anti-Red Plans

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Jan. 23 (AP).—Spy ring letters made public by police today pictured Slovakia as "a central European stronghold for American troops to interfere efficiently with the moves of the Soviet Union." They also said "the Americans are starting to prepare very seriously for a war."

The letters were published in connection with the arrest of three score persons in Slovakia on charges of plotting against the government.

A police statement said the letters were written by Josef Vican, a Slovak who flew to Austria, and that they proved he and the persons arrested in Slovakia were working with American intelligence units in Austria.

The letters seemed to indicate however, that Vican—if he wrote the letters—was trying to whip up money and a following in Slovakia with which to impress other emigres and authorities outside of Czechoslovakia.

Vican has been identified by police as a former Slovakian government official under Father Tiso when Hitler made Slovakia an independent state.

Freshman Senator

Cocktail Hour Encroaching On Work Hours, Douglas Says

"The cocktail hour" in Washington often extends to such proportions that it interferes with the work of Congress, Paul H. Douglas, freshman Senator from Illinois, said yesterday.

Letting off a little steam at the end of party-filled Inaugural Week, Douglas said:

"I'd be willing to hold later afternoon and evening Senate committee hearings to escape the people who think a Senator's time should be taken up with cocktail parties."

But as the former University of Chicago economic professor and Marine Corps combat veteran was about ready to really warm up on the subject, he paused, apparently anticipating wails from angry hostesses.

"Emily, will you come in please," he called to his wife, formerly a Congresswoman in her own right. "I'm about to put my foot in it."

Mrs. Douglas came in and so did the Senator's daughter.

They roared as he suggested that he'd be willing to give his colleagues "an hour off for cocktails" if there was an iron-bound agreement to return to work later.

Part of the trouble, Douglas said, was that new Senators like himself have "no excuse" to decline party invitations. "We would have, if we had to work," he persisted.

The Senator glanced at his wristwatch, grabbed his hat and rushed off, crying:

"Oh my! We've got to go to three cocktail parties this afternoon."

Egyptian Demand Unexpected

Israel Facing Armistice Crisis On Eve of Its First Election

Tel Aviv, Israel, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—Israel faced crises in armistice negotiations with Egypt and Trans-Jordan tonight, on the eve of its first election Tuesday, and it was announced that the evacuation of Egyptian troops from the Faluja pocket had been postponed.

Dispatches from Rhodes reported the Israeli and Egyptian delegations were still deadlocked over the question of establishing an armistice line in southern Palestine.

Well informed quarters reported here that Israeli-Trans-Jordan negotiations were deadlocked over the question of setting a border line on the central front east of the main Tel Aviv-Haifa highway.

[Qualified informants told the Associated Press that Egypt unexpectedly made an unyielding demand that Israel give up all Negev territory she has seized in the fighting since October 14. This the Israelis refuse to do, contending they have made some big concessions in the talks and Egypt must concede something, too. Some informants said they suspected somebody has offered to strengthen Egypt's hand in the negotiations, and that the "somebody" may be Britain.

[Qualified British sources said, "It would seem best to treat it (the report) with a good deal of skepticism."]

Atlantic Pact Seen First Acheson Job

41 Nations Here

Meeting Set To Plan New Wheat Pact

Delegates from more than 40 countries will meet at the State Department Wednesday to try to work out a new international wheat agreement.

A previous agreement, signed by representatives of 36 nations in Washington last March 6—after long conferences in London—became ineffective when the Eightieth Congress failed to approve it or even hold hearings.

This week's meeting will convene under much more promising circumstances than attended the London meetings a year ago. Already 41 nations have accepted invitations—five more than last time—including two of the five big wheat producers, Argentina and Soviet Russia, who didn't participate before.

In agreeing to take part, neither Russia nor Argentina restricted their participation to the role of observer as first expected. Argentina will be represented by Juan Scarpati, economic counselor of its Washington Embassy; and Russia by a delegation of four headed by Sergei A. Borisov.

The importing countries that signed the agreement last March were Afghanistan, Austria, Belgium, Brazil, China, Colombia, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, France, Greece, Guatemala, India, Ireland, Italy, Lebanon, Liberia, Mexico, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, South Africa, Sweden, Switzerland, United Kingdom and Venezuela.

These 33 countries agreed to buy a total of 500 million bushels of wheat annually for five years from the three exporting countries, United States, Canada and Australia. Expectations are that if Russia and Argentina are included among the exporting nations in any new agreement the amount of grain involved will be increased above last year's figures.

Diplomatic informants yesterday forecast that Dean Acheson, new Secretary of State, will take over at once as chief United States negotiator in talks on the North Atlantic Security Alliance.

The pact would link the United States and Canada with Britain, France, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands in alliance against aggression, in effect a deal to quarantine western Europe from invasion by Russia and her satellites.

As now drafted, the plan provides for immediate consultation of signatory powers in case of aggression, or a threat of hostilities, but the United States Congress would reserve the right to say what action this country could take.

It was reported that Acheson and the foreign ministers of the other member nations will meet soon, perhaps at Bermuda, to sign the draft.

'Slenderizing' Boosts Airlift Load 550 Lbs.

By C. B. Allen

Planes participating in the Berlin airlift, military air transport officials disclosed yesterday, have been undergoing "reducing exercises" with the result that they are now able to carry an average of 550 pounds more food and coal on each trip to the blockaded city than they were before the "slenderizing" program started.

Some of the plushier Douglas C-54s assigned to the airlift are now carrying more than 1000 pounds additional pay-load following removal of their surplus furnishings and recalculation of their basic weight. This work, carried out under supervision of First Lieutenant James A. Ford, weights and balance officer of the combined airlift task force, already has been completed on the C-54s based at Rhein-Main and Wiesbaden and will be extended to all planes assigned to operation vittles.

Prior to Lieutenant Ford's strip-tease activities, airlift losses out of Wiesbaden alone are estimated to have been 303,000 pounds in one month's operation. Equipment items removed from the planes include plush seats and other luxury furnishings, additional-range fuselage fuel and oil tanks, navigation and cargo-loading equipment, emergency radios, troop seats, oxygen bottles and lavatory water tanks.

Troop Units Listed for Exercises

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 23 (AP).—The general who will command the joint Marine Corps and Army expeditionary troops in the Atlantic command exercises beginning February 14 in the Caribbean, today announced the troop units participating.

Lieut. Gen. Keller E. Rockey, USMC, commanding general fleet Marine Force Atlantic, said the landing forces of the amphibious assault will consist of the Second Marine Division and the Army's Sixty-fifth Infantry (reinforced) Caribbean command.

This group will be under direction of Maj. Gen. R. A. Hart, USMC, General Rockey said.

Close air support for the assault troops will be furnished by the Second Marine Aircraft Wing commanded by Maj. Gen. Field Harris, USMC. Various units of the wing will also figure in the airlift of the expeditionary troops airborne reserve which is under the command of Lieut. Col. F. W. Benson, USMC.

The troop training unit, Atlantic Fleet, from Little Creek, Va., commanded by Brig. Gen. W. A. Worton, USMC, will provide opposition to the landing force.

Brig. Gen. Vernor E. McGee, chief of staff Fleet Marine Force Atlantic, will serve as chief of staff for the joint Marine Corps and Army expeditionary troops.

Refugee Czech Warns of Trap In Red Peace Drive

By The Associated Press

A refugee Czechoslovak diplomat said yesterday that the United States and other western powers would make a great mistake to fall into the trap of a Russian peace offensive. He said that is the greatest fear now of eastern European nations.

The refugee, Dr. Edward Taborsky, said that eastern Europeans "and especially the Czechs know that if the United States continues strong, a solution between east and west may be found without war because the Russians may be defeated politically.

"This is what eastern Europe lives for, the moment it awaits," he added.

Taborsky was secretary to the late President Edward Benes of Czechoslovakia from 1939 to 1945. Later he was Czech minister to Sweden.

Klein Protests Admission of German Pianist

By the United Press

Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) criticized the Immigration Service last night for permitting German pianist Walter Gieseking to enter the United States even temporarily.

He said Gieseking has been paroled pending a formal hearing today on whether he should be given a visa.

Klein said he is asking Secretary of State Acheson to make an investigation. He is convinced, he said, that the pianist's proposed tour of the United States is a "blind" to "lull" America into forgetfulness of Nazi brutality and the millions of American lives already sacrificed to Hitler.

Airlift to Receive Aviation Medal Today

The Berlin airlift has been chosen to receive the annual Aviation Medal of the Army and Navy Union, USA, James M. Callahan of Victor, Iowa, national commander of the organization, announced yesterday.

Presentation will be made in ceremonies at 11 a. m. today at the Pentagon. Maj. Gen. Edward F. Witsell will accept the medal in behalf of members of the Berlin airlift from Comdr. Callahan and officials of the organization's Americanism committee.

The citation accompanying the medal states in part the award was made for ". . . demonstrating the superiority of Americanism over Communism, thereby saving an entire nation from embracing Communism."

Atom Training Course For Teachers Planned

New York, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—New York City will launch the Nation's first atomic energy training course for school teachers in February, Mayor William O'Dwyer announced today.

The 15-weeks training course, which will begin on February 17, will be sponsored by the Board of Education with the cooperation of the United States Atomic Energy Commission.

West Germany Leader Warns On Comeback by Ex-Officers

By Marguerite Higgins

Dusseldorf, Jan. 23 (NYHT.).—Dr. Konrad Adenauer, president of the West German Parliamentary Council, expressed anxiety today over alleged talks on military subjects between some American officials and former Germany army officers.

In an interview at Bonn, near here, Dr. Adenauer said he had reason to believe there have been talks betwen certain Americans and a certain S. S. (Elite Guard) General Steiner.

Dr. Adenauer, chairman in the western zones of the Christian Democratic Union, made it plain he did not approve of any comeback by former German army officers, and that he objected to the reconstitution of a western German army as such.

Dr. Adenauer is among the leading politicians in west Germany who are currently engaged in drawing up the constitution at Bonn, and may be west Germany's president.

What Life Insurance did in 1948

- For you...
- For 78 Million other policy owners...
- For America!

Money put to work for the benefit of all! The money needed for future payments to 78 million policy owners was working money! It was invested by 549 separate life insurance companies. It earned money for the policy owners . . . helped to reduce life insurance costs. It helped, too, to finance your government, to build factories, to make jobs, to provide housing . . . for everybody's benefit!

Thus in 1948 the average policy owner's part in the country's progress increased to $710. This was another new high. It was a testimonial to the American family's thrift and foresight and faith in the future.

Four out of five families in 1948 faced our uncertain world with the peace of mind that comes from being protected by life insurance.

For you . . . for the 78 million other Americans owning life insurance in 1948, your policies "paid off" in the present, every day of the year.

Every day your life insurance brought you as head of your family the satisfaction—the peace of mind—that comes from your effort to "do right by the family," no matter what might happen to you.

To the extent of your insurance protection you and your family were relieved of major worries. And so you were free to use your efforts where they count most: To solve today's problems, to get ahead towards your goals.

Yes, life insurance provides three services: It provides now for protection against future risks. It brings peace of mind for the present. It consequently helps people get ahead! As a result, Americans believe in it, and continue to increase their ownership of life insurance.

All told, they owned more than $201 billion of life insurance last year—over $6,000 of protection per insured family. And they did this on their own initiative . . . in spite of high living costs.

Thus life insurance brought many benefits to many people in many ways . . .

Helped reach family goals! Last year again; more than half of the $3,170 million life insurance money paid out was paid during the lifetime of the policy owners themselves. These payments included money to put children through college . . . to help older folks retire. Other payments made realities of trips and other "someday" plans. They also helped families over unexpected emergencies. And there were substantial premium refunds, in the form of dividends, to policy owners.

Yes, through life insurance the people did much for themselves and for America in 1948! In this they were helped by their life insurance agents . . . trained men and women who are doing something far more than just "selling insurance." They are helping people to plan their protection according to their present needs . . . helping them provide for the future in the "do-it-yourself" spirit that is America!

For what this country amounts to depends upon what happens to its homes!

Families kept together in time of need! In 1948 life insurance companies paid $1,430 million primarily to the beneficiaries of men and women who voluntarily built up funds through life insurance to help keep the family a "going concern." And keeping families together keeps the country strong.

Significant highlights of a business which affects every American

1. Four out of five American families were protected by one or more life insurance policies
2. 78,000,000 people own them
3. These policies represent $201 billion of protection
4. Backing up this protection is $55 billion . . . invested, earning interest, and aiding the nation's growth
5. $1,430 million was paid out in death benefits
6. $1,740 million—more than half of all payments—were made during the life of the policy owner.

THE LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES AND THEIR AGENTS

This report is based on the operations of 549 separate and competing legal reserve companies. This report to America is made again because their business, directly or indirectly, affects every American. The policies which these companies issue, and the benefits which they pay, and the investments which they make are important stabilizing forces in our national life. The fact that these companies are competitive in every detail keeps them serving the national interest best.

Soviet Wants Peace, 2 Red Leaders Say

Rome, Jan. 23 (AP).—Italian Communist Chief Palmiro Togliatti and French Communist Leader Marcel Cachin declared today Soviet Russia wants and needs peace.

Addressing a Communist rally here they accused the United States of preparing for a new war and called upon "the peoples of the world to save the imperiled peace."

The speeches amplified earlier remarks made by both men which were interpreted in some quarters as signaling the launching of a "peace offensive" by Russia or at least a new propaganda line designed to convince the rest of the globe that it can get along with Prime Minister Stalin.

Both men objected to describing it as a "peace offensive," Togliatti declared, "Our adversaries must always speak of peace in terms of war."

"The people do not want war, and Comrade Stalin does not want war."

"The Marshall Plan is politics provoking a new war. The policy of the American industrialists is for war, but they cannot go to war because they know they would be beaten by the will for peace of the people."

Coachin asserted that "the great industry of the United States with its press and radio, is trying to incite the whole world against Russia."

"The Soviet is preparing no aggression. She needs peace. But the United States is spending 40 billion dollars preparing war for tomorrow."

An estimated 8000 persons packed the theater where the two men spoke. Ten thousands others stood outside listening to a broadcast of the addresses. They were ringed by carabineri and motorized police. There were no reports of incidents.

Bullet-Proof Auto Of Hitler's On Display Here

Five tons of shiny, bullet-proof steel and glass that once whisked Adolf Hitler along parade routes in conquered countries was on display here yesterday.

In the Capital Garage showroom, 1320 New York ave. nw., yesterday, visitors were allowed to really see and examine the $35,000 specially constructed automobile that carried the fuehrer across his transient empire at a 135-mile-per-hour clip.

The exhibit is sponsored by the Washington Gas Light Co. American Legion Post No. 44 under the direction of A. W. Loring, post commander, and Herbert H. MacMurray, chairman of the post's executive committee. Proceeds from the display, open from 9 a. m. to 11:30 p. m., will go to the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club of Washington.

Following a fund raising tour for charities, owner of the car, Chris Janus, Chicago businessman, has announced that the behemoth will be presented to the Smithsonian Institution here.

Absence at Luncheon Called 'Slap in Face'

London, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—The January bulletin of the Empire Industries Association and the British Empire League reported today that the British government gave a "gratuitous insult" to Canadian Agriculture Minister J. G. Gardiner during his London visit.

The bulletin said that failure of any government minister to attend a luncheon given Gardiner on December 17 by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Britain was a "violent slap in the face."

Rumors Woman Has Head of Ass Draw Hundreds

Bucharest, Romania, Jan. 23 (AP).—Priests at the Patriarchate here had a hard job today, turning away hundreds who had come to see a woman with the head of an ass.

The strange mass psychosis began several weeks ago when rumors began to spread in Bucharest suburbs that a woman, stopped by an old man and asked a question, retorted:

"Don't be an ass."

The old man replied, according to the story:

"He who says so, is."

The old man vanished and the woman's head, so the story runs, turned to that of an ass. The rumors said she lived in the vicinity of the Patriarchate. Authorities said priests have been fighting to down the story ever since.

McMahon Hints Reds May Have A-Bomb Soon

Senator McMahon (D., Conn.), chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, hinted last night that Russia may have atomic weapons within two or three years.

For this reason, he said on a forum broadcast over WINX, it is imperative that some solution be found of the conflict of ideas between Communist Russia and the democratic nations to avoid a "blood bath that would destroy civilization."

Greek Rebels Shell Salonika For 3d Time

Belgrade, Jan. 23 (NYHT).—The Greek rebels have again shelled Salonika according to a Free Greece radio broadcast reported in the Belgrade press today.

The bombardment of the key Aegean port was the third reported here in the last two months. Recently the rebels claimed their patrols penetrated temporarily into outlying districts of the city, which has a population of about 250,000.

The town of Karpenisi, in central Greece, still was in rebel hands after its capture yesterday, according to the latest Free Greece claims. The town is 125 miles northwest of Athens.

(There was no new word of the reported death of United States Lieut. Col. Selden R. Edner in a plane crash. Greek newspapers said a rebel broadcast declared Edner was fatally injured.)

Atom Laboratory Blast Slightly Injures Three

Hanford, Wash., Jan. 23 (U.P.).—A chemical explosion in an experimental laboratory at this atomic energy city today injured three men slightly and did other damage described as minor.

Nature of the chemicals that exploded was not disclosed, but Fred C. Schlemmer, Hanford Work Project manager, said the blast occurred in an area where there was no plutonium production.

Lindbergh Completes Tour

London, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—Charles A. Lindbergh has completed his inspection tour of American air bases in Europe and will return to the United States tomorrow or Tuesday to report to Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, it was announced tonight.

Catholics Urged To Keep Faith In Hungary

Budapest, Hungary, Jan. 23 (AP).—The bench of Hungary's Roman Catholic bishops expressed deep concern today over strained relations between the church and state.

A pastoral letter was read in the country's Catholic churches, admonishing Catholics to be faithful to their church and country and to abstain from subversive activities.

The church in Hungary does "not give up the doctrine, laws and divine rights of the church, and she should not do so without the assent of the Holy See (the Vatican)," the letter said.

The Roman Catholic primate of Hungary, Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, now is in jail awaiting trial on charges of treason, espionage, black market dealings and other accusations.

Britain to Aid France

London, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—Britain has agreed to increase its purchases from France to help reduce the French sterling deficit, the Foreign Office announced tonight.

Defense Pact Differences Prolong Talks

Copenhagen, Denmark, Jan. 23 (AP).—Diqerences between Norway, Sweden and Denmark on a common defense system forced delegates tonight to extend the Scandinavian Conference another day.

Danish Premier Hans Hedtoft told newsmen the impasse was produced by "differing views of the present international situation." He said it is "the wish of all three nations to establish" a defense alliance.

Earlier it was reported Sweden had offered to enter a pact based on neutrality and not linked with the Western European Union or the projected North Atlantic Alliance.

East and West Ideas to Clash In Libel Suit

Paris, Jan. 23 (AP).—A French courtroom will be the stage tomorrow for an expected clash of the conflicting ideologies of east and west—another skirmish in the cold war.

The occasion will be the first hearing in the trial of a libel suit filed by Victor Andreievitch Kravchenko, author of the book, "I Chose Freedom," against the pro-Communist weekly paper, Les Lettres Francaises.

Two articles alleged to be libelous, one signed by "Sim Thomas," identified as a United States journalist, and the other by Andre Wurmser, questioned Kravchenko's veracity.

The trial is scheduled to last three weeks, with hearings each Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Eighty-eight witnesses have been listed.

For the defense, 15 Soviet citizens have been granted permission to leave the USSR and testify against Kravchenko. Among these are his former wife, Zina, whom he married when a student and divorced six months later, and a one time girl friend named Irina.

On Kravchenko's side, 30 witnesses, all Russians, will tell the court why they do not want to go back to Soviet Russia. Kravchenko's agent said one is "a hero of the Red army," whose identity has been kept secret for security reasons.

New Hertzog Cabinet Nearly Completed

La Paz, Bolivia, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—President Enrique Hertzog has nearly completed formation of his new cabinet, administration sources said today.

Hertzog's previous government resigned yesterday, to give the President and opportunity to reorganize his cabinet in anticipation of the congressional elections scheduled for May 1.

French Launch Drive To Raise $314 Million

Paris, Jan. 23 (AP).—The French government today began a drive to borrow from its citizens the reconstruction funds it could not or would not raise by taxation.

Finance Minister Maurice Petsche officially launched the nation's bond drive for 100 billion francs (roughly 314 million dollars) with a nation-wide radio address calling upon Frenchmen to subscribe as their contribution to the country's rehabilitation.

Reds Drive Almost to Yangtze

75 miles southwest of Nanking, indicating a red move to encircle the captial was under way, Hofei, a city of 500,000, is a great rice-producing center.

A Communist broadcast quoted 55 "liberals" including Marshal Li Chi-sen, leader of Hong Kong dissidents, members of the democratic league and well-known writers as indorsing Communist Chairman Mao Tse-tung's eight peace demands.

The broadcast said Li and other liberals attended a Communist-sponsored meeting 'somewhere in north China" (presumably at Shihchiachuan) at which they said there was "no room for compromise on peace.

The broadcast claimed that Nationalist "reactionaries want to forestall the revolution by their peace offensive"

The radio said the 55 liberals demanded that the "people's revolution" be carried on until the "traitorous Kuomintang government" is overthrown and a "democratic coalition government" is established.

The Red radio again called government peace proposals a "double-barrelled political plot" supported by the United States and referred to Chiang's New Year message as "entirely a trick."

The reforms instituted by Li, with full cooperation of Premier Sun Fo, amounted to overhauling of government structures dominated by the Duomintang (Government Party) for more than 20 years. These moves—either announced publicly or informally—included:

1. Plans to move the capital from Nanking to Canton were discarded.
2. Special criminal courts set up to deal with political and economic violations and "seditious activities" will be abolished.
3. Political prisoners will be released. These prisoners were said to include "Young Marshal" Chang Hsueh-liang and Gen. Yang Fucheng, held since the "Sian incident" of 1936, when Chiang was kidnaped.
4. Restrictions and control over newspapers and periodicals will be lifted. Such newspapers as Hsinminpao would be expected to resume publication after being banned for "leftist" views.
5. Li, on personal initiative, sent appeals to such liberals as Mme. Sun Yat-sen, Chang Lan, founder and chairman of the outlawed Democratic League, and Marshal Li Chi-shen, exiled former army leader, somewhere in North China for conferences.
6. Overtures to the Communists to restore communications and postal services between Nationalist and Communist China.

There also were reports that nation-wide martial law might be lifted.

Lake Success, Jan. 23 (AP).—Action taken at the Asian conference has "strengthened the hand" of the Security Council for dealing with the Indonesian question, a source close to the American delegation said today.

The conference in New Delhi demanded "overdue" action by the United Nations to end Dutch military rule in Indonesia.

The United States source said it was significant the Asian conference had channeled all its effort through U. N. He indicated that the bloc of 19 countries with as much potential power as those which met in New Delhi could have taken more drastic action.

"They showed a great deal of moderation," this source said.

Nationalists' Peace Hopes Are Feared

By the United Press

Diplomatic officials were pessimistic yesterday over chances the Chinese Nationalists will win a satisfactory peace agreement with the Chinese Communists.

Officials pointed out the Communists have expressed practically no interest in reaching a truce while their armies are rolling ahead. They also noted that the bargaining power of the Nationalist forces in any peace negotiations had been just about swept away by steady Communist advances and increasing demands for peace.

Senate Will Tackle Anti-Inflation Bills

By the United Press

The Senate will go to work this week on two anti-inflation bills without waiting for President Truman to formally submit his economic legislation.

Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan and Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer will testify before the Senate Banking Committee Tuesday on extension of the Government's authority to work out voluntary allocation agreements with industry.

On Friday they will go before the committee again to testify on legislation extending the President's authority to control exports. Both powers are scheduled to expire at the end of February.

Ready to Start Work

With the President's inauguration over, both the House and Senate are ready to start work on various phases of his "people's mandate" legislative program.

The House Ways and Means Committee begins hearings today on reciprocal trade legislation.

The Senate Rules Committee will hear testimony, from Senators only, on the Administration's plan to curb filibusters.

The Senate Agriculture Committee also will meet to hear Brannan testify on the Administration's plans for continuing price supports on farm products.

House Republicans hope to beat the Democrats to the punch on Federal aid to education. House GOP Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr., (Mass.) will introduce a bill today to provide for a 300-million-dollar, three-year program of Federal grants to the States for school construction only.

The Administration will sponsor a measure which would grant funds to the States for teachers salaries as well as more school facilities, but they have been unable to compromise some differences.

Mr. Truman's formal economic recommendations, probably including requests for standby wage and price controls, are expected to reach Congress some time this week.

Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) said his Banking Subcommittee would start hearings on rent controls as soon as it receives White House suggestions. They are expected to follow closely a bill by Senate Democratic Whip Francis J. Myers (Pa.) to extend controls for 27 months.

Hearing Opens On Trade Act

Trade Organization, which sets codes of fair practice for world trade. If the Trade Agreements Act can be revised and extended without delay, the ITO Charter my be submitted to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by the end of next month.

Labor, farmer and other citizens' organizations are expected to favor revision and extension of the Trade Agreements Act at this week's hearings; business groups are expected to oppose.

Today's witnesses, in addition to Assistant Secretary Thorp, are expected to be Russell Smith, legislative secretary of the Farmers' Union; Mrs. Leslie Wright, of the General Federation of Women's Clubs; Benjamin Marsh of the People's Lobby; and spokesmen for the Farm Bureau Federation and Americans for Democratic Action.

GOP Finances Show Surplus, Talbot Says

Harold E. Talbot, chairman of the Republican Finance Committee, said yesterday the party "is not broken in faith, enthusiam or financially."

He said in a formal report to Hugh Scott, chairman of the GOP National Committee, that the party still has $500,000 in its reserve fund, has paid all 1948 campaign bills and has a slight surplus over.

Draft-Gates Move Against Scott Reported

A move to "draft" Ralph E. Gates, former Governor of Indiana, as a candidate for Republican national chairman to spearhead a drive to unseat Representative Hugh D. Scott, jr., of Pennsylvania from this post was reported today.

The Gates-for-chairman campaign was disclosed as pressure within the national committee to oust Chairman Scott mounted in the wake of his action yesterday in appointing an executive committee top-heavy with Dewey men and naming himself as chairman of this party steering group.

Supporters of Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, who were thoroughly angered by Chairman Scott's actions, were reported to be behind the move to name former Governor Gates as his successor.

Senator Taft, although he emphasized that he would take no part in any chairmanship battle at the Republican National Committee meeting in Omaha, Nebr., this week, named Gates as one of several men who would be "acceptable" to him as national chairman.

Scott Defies Critics, Won't Quit Either Post

Omaha, Jan. 23 (AP).—Hugh D. Scott, jr., defied his critics today and said he would not resign either as Republican national chairman or as Congressman from Pennsylvania.

In a radio broadcast last night, Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) suggested that Scott should resign one of the posts. Taft said he "ought to give full time to the job."

Israel Fund Drive Started

New York, Jan. 23 (AP).—The Palestine Economic Corporation announced today the start of a Nationwide drive to marshal investment capital for the economic development of Israel.

The corporation, at the same time, disclosed that Henry Morgenthau, jr., former Secretary of the Treasury, had been elected chairman of its board and would lead the drive. Henry Montor, former executive chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, was named vice president of the corporation.

Founded by the late Felix M. Warburg, Louis Marshall and Justice Louis D. Brandeis, the Palestine Economic Corporation has been engaged in banking and industrial development activities in Palestine.

Twelve business leaders were added to the board: Charles J. Rosenbloom of Pittsburgh, Joseph Mazer of New York, Morris Bernstein of Syracuse, N. Y., Joseph Shulman of Paterson, N. J., Harold J. Goldenberg of Minneapolis, Rudolph G. Sonneborn and Abraham Feinberg of New York, Joel Gross of Newark, N. J., and Samuel Rothberg and Julian B. Venezky of Peoria, Ill.

Israel Faces Peace Crisis

Gurion's Labor Party and those of Menahem Beigin's so-called Freedom Movement as campaigning approached a climax.

Reliable sources said this evening the government had instructed its delegates at Rhodes not to sign any armistice agreement with the Egyptians until late Tuesday or early Wednesday, so that the announcement would have no effect on the election for a constituent assembly.

This would fit in with hints here that an armistice was going to be signed, despite the apparently complete deadlock over the establishment of a line between the Israeli and Egyptian armies.

United Nations headquarters announced tonight that evacuation of trapped Egyptian troops from the Faluja pocket in southern Palestine, scheduled to start at dawn Monday., had been postponed. No reason was given.

London, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—British cabinet leaders will make a final decision Monday on the recognition of the provisional government of Israel, it was understood tonight.

Southerners Gird for Battle On Senate Filibuster Curbs

By the United Press

The North vs. South battle over President Truman's civil rights program is expected to erupt with a bang today when the Senate Rules Committee begins hearing testimony, from Senators only, on antifilibuster legislation.

The committee has before it five resolutions which would place curbs on the "talkathons" now allowed by Senate rules and used in the past by Southern Democrats to block passage of civil rights measures.

Administration leaders hope to change the rules so Mr. Truman's antipoll tax, antilynching, antisegregation and fair employment practices bills can be called up for passage.

The Southerners have promised a fight to the finish against nearly all the measures and they don't intend to surrender their best weapon against them—the filibuster—without a last-ditch battle.

Senator Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.) predicted meantime that civil rights legislation will not be adopted "early" in the present Congress because of the press of other business.

In a radio interview yesterday with Charles Parmer (WPIK), Humphrey invited his "Southern friends to understand" that the civil rights bill "do not apply entirely to the South."

"All of America is with a bit of sin on this," he said. "There is no single area in this country that is guiltless. There is not one area that is totally guilty."

GOP Will Fill 2 House Probers' Posts Wednesday

Two Republican vacancies on the House Un-American Activities Committee will be filled by the party on Wednesday, Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., (R., Mass.) said yesterday.

While Martin, minority leader of the House, declined to discuss possible appointments it was learned that the Republican leadership favors Representative Harold H. Velde of Illinois and Representative Francis Case of South Dakota for the two openings. A final decision has not yet been reached.

Taft-Hartley Gain Claimed

By The Associated Press

Senate Labor Committee Republicans fighting repeal of the Taft-Hartley law claim a first-round victory in advance of a verdict today.

In fact, GOP backers of the law were looking far ahead to the eventual showdown on the Senate floor and to keeping the support of a group of Southern Democrats. That group helped the Republicans put the Taft-Hartley measure on the books over President Truman's veto in 1947.

The issue today is whether to hold hearings on a repeal bill which also would restore the old Wagner Act.

Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) has promised to be on hand so the labor committee can vote on his plan to send the repealer to the floor immediately, without hearings.

Awards Presented In Promoting Rights

La Belle Dietrich A Treasure, Too

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
MARLENE DIETRICH, who might well have been the most stared-at actress at the Radio City movie party celebrating the New York Film Critics' awards, does a bit of staring herself. The sultry actress was among the notables at the presentation for 1948 winners: Olivia de Havilland ("The Snake Pit"); Laurence Olivier ("Hamlet"), and Director John Huston ("Treasure of the Sierra Madre")

New York, Jan. 23 (AP).—Eight organizations joined tonight in presenting awards of merit to various agencies and individuals for their "important contributions to civil rights of American citizens."

The awards were made at a benefit show, sponsored by eight organizations, in Carnegie Hall. Numerous stage, screen and musical celebrities were on the program.

Recipients of the awards, and reasons for which they were cited, are:

Federal Judge J. Waties Waring, for his ruling in Charleston, S. C., restraining State officials "who sought to bar Negro voters from participating in primary elections."

Fraternity Head Cited

Schrade F. Radtke, president of Alpha Chi Sigma, national chemistry fraternity at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, for "surrendering the fraternity's charter because membership was limited to non-Semitic members of the Caucasion race."

The Rev. George Nichols Marshall, minister of the First Church, Plymouth, Mass., for "his crusade against bigotry, and particularly, restrictive covenants."

Curtis Campaigne, jr., and his coworkers "for their audit on civil rights conducted in the town of Montclair, N. J."

Ted Cott, representing New York Radio Station WNEW, for "the creative use of the radio jingle to further better understandnig among all people."

Robert Maxwell Associates, for "including good will announcements in the writing of the 'Superman' radio programs."

Rabbi Selected

Rabbi Gabriel Schulman of Brith Sholom congregation "for his support and financial aid to the Second Presbyterian Church in New York City."

The Rev. George B. Ratcliffe of the First Congregational Church, Milton, Mass., for "leading a children's group in the church in the presentation of a gift of a grove of trees to be planted in Israel as a monument to the 1,250,000 Jewish children who died as a result of Nazi persecution."

Frederick D. Green, 2d, president of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity at Amherst College, for "the election to that fraternity of Thomas W. Gibbs, a Negro, resulting in the loss of their national charter."

Walter Bowland, coach of the Lakeview (Ga.) High School football team for "his stand against the Ku Klux Klan."

Dr. Lewis Webster Jones, president of the University of Arkansas, the "first Southern medical school to admit a Negro student."

Yale Football Team

Levi Jackson, on behalf of the Yale University football team, for "their election of the first Negro as captain of the 1949 team."

Frank S. Jones, on behalf of the Harvard University football team, for "their election of a Negro as manager of that team."

The awards were presented jointly by the Anti-Defamation League, the Metropolitan Council of B'nai B'rith, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Freedom House, the Common Council for American Unity, the Public Education Association, the World Student Service Fund, the Citizens' Housing and planning Council and the National Citizens' Council on Civil Rights.

Former Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, president of Freedom House, presented the awards.

One on the Aisle—

'The Madwoman' A Magical Play

By Richard L. Coe

A COMPLETELY BEGUILING and magical play is at New York's Belasco Theater, "The Madwoman of Chaillot." If imagination and originality in the theater are what exalt you—as opposed to simply slick showmanship—make a special trip North.

For this wise, civilized and witty comedy has moments in it of true theatrical magic in a season strikingly lacking such. Several times during the evening you realize that this is what the theater can do, what only the theater, with its inimitable sorcery, can conjure.

"The Madwoman of Chaillot" (shy-O) was written in Paris, in 1943, by Jean Giraudoux. He planned not to produce it until after the liberation, setting a hypothetical date for October 17, 1945. Giraudoux wasn't far wrong; the actual production, with Louis Jouvet in the leading male role, came in December of that year, 11 months after its author's death.

An immediate success, its fame spread quickly and Frances Starr tells me Laurette Taylor sent two agents to Paris for the American rights. The star's death put off the American production, but it is to his lasting honor that Alfred de Liagre, jr., has produced it here and while one feels that aspects of his production are not all they might be, it serves, in an imperfect world, as a worthy achievement.

While the story would seem simple in outline, it so sparkles with ideas, comic moments and profound truths, that it is not in reality so simple as it seems. It tells of a whacky old crone who discovers a plot by financiers and tricksters to dredge for oil under the neighborhood of Paris she considers her own. With the connivance of her workaday friends, some of them as deliriously batty as herself, she leads these forces of evil a la the Pied Piper of Hamelin to their certain destruction.

An Ecstatic Mazurka

Giraudoux treats this fable much as might a polished and sophisticated William Saroyan. His compassion is always for the unwept, the unhonored and the unsung. His villains are the little foxes of the world who would feed on the life blood of the less fortunate. With the mellowness of true wisdom, he has his daft lady remind her collaborators that the world will not especially notice the disappearance of these evil people; it will only know that for a short spell, at most, it is indescribably happy. For a brief moment before the curtain falls, the madwoman and her associates dance an ecstatic mazurka that is one of the most enchanting scenes I've ever seen in the theater.

The first act is largely exposition, throughout which Giraudoux seems to be saying—let's take our time, let's think of this and that. We dwell on the cynical financier: "These days," he says, "every cabbage has its pimp. . . . Civilizations are damned awkward to dig up when you want to find what's underneath." We make the acquaintance of Countess Aurelia, the madwoman, who chatters of her long dead lover, of the feather boa someone stole from her five years before.

The Joys of Living

To a young man who tried to commit suicide, she is the only one in those who crowd around him who can give a cogent reason for clinging to life. She outlines her uneventful day and its pleasures. She talks of the delight she has in reading her morning newspaper, the same tattered copy she's been reading for 43 years. Oh, no, she doesn't learn anything new, but it's so pleasant reading about that lovely party given by the Countess of X in 1905. To her maid she remarks: "You could let the mouse out of its trap. I'm tired of feeding it."

The countess' three closest friends we meet in Act II at as mad a tea party since the March Hare's. In brilliantly comic dialogue each reveals she knows she is living in a dream world. Most vivid of them is Estelle Winwood's madwoman of Passy. For over 30 years she's been bringing everywhere with her a nonexistent dog, an irrepressible sprite named Dicky, whom her three friends pet and dandle on their laps as though he really existed. This afternoon, though, the countess has a serious problem on her mind and sharply tells Constance to drop the fooling and listen to her scheme. Miss Winwood pouts, frets and finally flounces on a rickety chair. "Besides," she says, smoothing her skirt, "I didn't bring Dicky today."

This combination of the insane and the pure logic is the essence of Giraudoux' slight of hand throughout. Those who are consciously self-deceiving finally best those who think they are the purely practical.

In the title role, Martita Hunt (Miss Haversham in "Great Expectations") is nothing short of haunting, a blowzy, yet imperious woman, dressed in clothes of an elegant past, crowned by a mountainous red wig. It is almost as if she is toying with the part, musing with the playwright about this strangely contented woman. Just as memorable is Miss Winwood, whose grace of motion and erratic mumblings form a portrait of unforgettable originality. As a young girl in love, Leora Dana makes a New York debut of truly remarkable promise.

While John Carradine lacks the virtuosity for the Jouvet role, there are able performances from Vladimir Sokoloff, Clarence Derwent, Nydia Westman, Ralph Roberts and James Westerfield in a large cast.

The settings by Christian Berard, imported from Paris, are superbly right for this rare spirit of mood, particularly the brass bedstead and red velvet canopy he gives the countess for her cellar bedroom. Maurice Velency did the adaptation.

Half of the New York reviewers didn't like this play and it has been said that "The Madwoman of Chaillot" is not everyone's pleasure. But the cheers from the packed house I saw it with suggest that it is presumptuous to be so cavalier about its magic.

Pruden Opposed To Mercy Killing

Mercy killing cannot be justified, Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., declared last night.

Dr. Pruden told his congregation that he did not wish to "denounce" the group of New York ministers and rabbis who asked the State Legislature to approve euthenasia, or mercy killing.

"At the present moment," he said, "I must confess that I could not conscientiously give my consent to so-called merciful killing." Life, the clergyman said, is a sacred possession which man did not create and should hesitate to destroy.

Might Change Mind

He pointed out that though a person might request to be killed because of great suffering, he might later change his mind.

There is also the possibility that nature may work a miracle of unexpected recovery, he pointed out. Science may also discover a cure for a seemingly "incurable" disease, he said.

General approval of such killing might increase crime and encourage suicide, Dr. Pruden said, for it would cheapen the value of human life.

It is a characteristic of our age that men seem unable to endure the same pain and privations endured in past ages, Dr. Pruden said. He pointed out that the sale of narcotics to relieve pain has today reached an all-time high, though our forefathers had the spiritual ability to withstand such suffering.

The only answer to human suffering, however great it may be, is through Christ, he concluded.

Postlude

Enesco Gets Results by Gestures

By Richard Keith

Two guest artists appeared with the National Symphony at Constitution Hall yesterday afternoon. George Enesco, Romanian conductor, violinist, and composer, conducted the second of two concerts here and Salvatore Baccaloni, veteran basso-buffo of the Metropolitan Opera, sang two groups of arias.

If the violin section had not fallen all over themselves several times, yesterday's performance would have been the best one by this orchestra of the season. In general, however, the orchestra seemed to sense precisely the effect which their inspired conductor desired. Mr. Enesco does not get his results by jumping and flailing his arms but by careful rehearsal and by small but significant gestures.

An atmosphere of breathless expectancy and dark forebodings hovered over the performance of Beethoven's Second Leonore Overturn which opened the program.

In Schumann's Fourth Symphony, even the most violent Schumann-hater could hardly have kept himself from being carried along with the gathering forces which pushed so powerfully forward to the first movement's main theme.

The orchestra gave a very brilliant performance of a new composition by Enesco called "Concerto-Overture on Motifs in the Romanian Character." While it is certainly skillfully written and highly colorful in spots, it seemed on first hearing, to be over-decorated, like many Christmas trees, with distracting incidentals.

Salvatore Baccaloni sang comic arias from operas by Rossini, Pergolesi, Mozart, and Moussorgsky. As usual, he brought the house down. His clowning was somewhat cramped by the presence of a full orchestra on the stage with him, but before he was finished he had managed to find his way to most parts of the paltform including the podium.

He is a perfect buffo with a fine voice when he wants it to be and an awful one when he doesn't.

The orchestra and Mr. Enesco deserve special mention for their superb following of this unpredictable singer.

String Quartet Pleases

The Tomasow String Quartet, assisted by Tatiana Gontsharowa, pianist, presented a concert at the National Gallery last night which included the Third Quartet of Quincy Porter, the Piano Quartet, Opus 16 of Beethoven, and the Debussy Quartet.

Porter's Quartet is a solid and interesting work in a conservative style with overtones of Ravel.

The group played with its usual excellent skill and warmth of tone. Miss Gontsharowa's very competent performance of the Beethoven work, however, was covered up most of the time by the other players. Either they should have played softer or raised the piano lid, since the pianist obviously had the most important part.

Democracy Rests Upon Religion, Minister Asserts

One of the most patriotic things a man can do is join a church and work at his religion, the Rev. Dr. Edward L. R. Elson declared yesterday at National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N st. nw.

Dr. Elson asserted that democracy depends upon religion. If religion is allowed to languish democracy begins to disintegrate, he said. The man who neglects his faith—"a cultured and refined and respected and well-educated pagan"—is a menace to democracy, he declared.

"If democracy should ever vanish, it will be because we are not sufficiently Christian. We cannot play at religion and trifle with our inheritance and keep the American way," Dr. Elson said.

Sen. Myers to Push Labor Program In Meeting Here

By The Associated Press

Senator Myers (D., Pa.), an Administration leader, said yesterday he is trying to enlist millions of labor union members in a drive to help put across President Truman's legislative program.

Myers, deputy Democratic chief in the Senate, told a reporter that is why he has arranged to confer here Wednesday night with labor leaders representing various big unions.

CIO officials said President Philip Murray will send a delegate.

Air Freighters Form Emergency Committee

The Air Freight Forwarder Association announced yesterday formation of an "emergency mobilization committee" to develop plans for use of their facilities in a crisis.

The association said in a statement that it intends to work with the Military Air Transport Service and other Government agencies in the movement of emergency cargoes.

Nonscheduled Air Carriers Appeal Rules

By the United Press

Nonscheduled air carriers yesterday sent to President Truman charges that the Civil Aeronautics Board is attempting to "destroy" them.

The National Independent Air Carriers, formed by the nonscheduled outfits a week ago, asked Mr. Truman by letter to investigate proposed new CAB regulations covering them. The organization said the rules were framed without any basis.

"Acting out of ignorance, the Civil Aeronautics Board has made no study of the facts and conditions that spell the need for the new unsubsidized competitive air industry," the letter said. It was written by James Fischgrund of the executive committee.

The regulation under attack would revoke the present blanket operating authority given nonscheduled lines, and require them to apply for individual certificates. Their spokesman hold that if the board intended to permit them all to continue operations, that procedure would be unnecessary.

District Guard Pays Tribute To War Dead

The District National Guard paid tribute yesterday to men who died in the service of the Nation at their annual memorial service at the Washington Cathedral.

Six uniformed units of the Guard marched into the cathedral as the Guard Band played "Onward Christian Soldiers." Leading the columns into the cathedral was Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commanding general of the District Guard.

The Rev. Dr. Peter Marshall, pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church and chaplain of the United States Senate, told the guardsmen that, though the United States is in many things strong and right, it is "deeply and dangerously wrong" in many others.

Though the Nation has highest standard of living in terms of things, he said, it lives on a comparatively low level in terms of crime, divorce, liquor consumption and the "low moral tone" of its best sellers, plays and novels.

Man Arrested as Drunk Dies in Police Cell

Arrested on a drunk charge near his home Saturday night, Moses A. Walton, 45, of 2490 Phillips ct. nw., died last night in a cell at the Third Police Precinct station, 2014 K st. nw.

Pvt. Frank J. Mahon found Walton, in a sitting position on a bunk, in a routine half hourly check of the cells at 6:55 p. m. An Emergency Hospital ambulance was summoned. The ambulance physician pronounced the man dead. Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, deputy coroner, ordered the body sent to the morgue where an autopsy was to be performed today to determine the cause of death.

Battle of the Cross . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO, Copyright, 1949, by N.Y. Star

OBSERVANCE MARRED—Constantino Kotteakos (left) swings at Constantino Stamoulis, a church official, during a melee which erupted yesterday during the Greek Orthodox Church's annual ceremony of diving for the cross in New York Harbor. Another of the six divers, 17-year-old Elestherios Lambros, appeared to have seized the cross, but there was a sudden splashing and Kotteakos, who retrieved the cross in eight previous years, emerged with the symbol. Back on land, harbor police broke up a bottle-throwing, nose-punching fracas that involved the two swimmers and a large part of the 2000 spectators. Church officials later named Lambros the winner

Friends Plan Duggan Fund For Education

New York, Jan. 23 (AP).—Friends of the late Laurence Duggan today announced establishment of a fund to advance the international education work in which he was interested.

The announcement was made by Archibald MacLeish, poet and former Librarian of Congress, acting for a sponsoring group of 25.

Duggan, president of of the Institute of International Education, died December 20 in a mysterious fall from his sixteenth-floor office here. He previously had been a State Department official.

Soon after his plunge, the House Un-American Activities Committee revealed he had been mentioned in testimony before it as a source of Government information given to Russian agents.

Later, the committee and the Justice Department cleared him of any suspicion of espionage.

Slave Laborers Exceed 75,000 in U. S., Says Group

New York, Jan. 23 (AP).—There are more than 75,000 "slave" or forced laborers in the United States, a memeber of a new commission formed to study forced labor throughout the world said today.

The figure cited by the Rev. Albert Konrad Herling, Unitarian minister and member of the Commission of Inquiry into Forced Labor.

The figure probably is low, he added, because it comes mainly from research by a voluntary group, the Workers Defense League, "which can only touch the surface" of the problem.

Herling said peonage law violations are prosecuted by the Federal Government when brought to the Government's attention. But, he added, "the Government doesn't know anything is going on until someone tells it."

He suggested as a solution an expanded civil rights division in the Department of Justice "rather than a little section of six men."

World Peace Report by Hiss Made Public

New York, Jan. 23 (AP).—Alger Hiss, in a report to the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace made public today, said the United Nations remains "the one best hope" for peace.

Hiss, president-on-leave of the endowment, was indicted last December on perjury charges by a grand jury investigating subversive activities.

The perjury indictment was returned after Hiss, former State Department official, denied turning over secret documents to Whittaker Chambers, confessed former Communist spy courier, before World War II.

Hiss' report, dated last November 18, was part of the endowment's annual report for 1948.

Asserting that the problems of peace today are not problems of organization but of "will and moral purpose," Hiss said:

"Never was there a greater challenge to the moral purposes of the civilized world than that presented by the crises of this postwar period.

The pathway to peace is slow, he said, adding that in a "single generation we must cross the great divide between the era of power politics with war as a national instrument and that of a lasting peace."

5 Million Cars, 1935 or Earlier, Licensed in '48

Detroit, Jan. 23 (AP).—Nearly five million automobiles built in 1935 or earlier were licensed last year.

The figures were compiled by R. L. Polk & Co., auto industry statisticians, which reported the total of all cars and trucks licensed as of July 1, 1948, was 36,573,009. This compared with 33,653,776 on July 1, 1947.

Included in the 1948 total were 29,967,719 passenger cars, compared with 27,521,395 in 1947 and 27,700,011 in 1941. The Polk figures do not include Government-owned vehicles. These represent another half million cars and trucks.

Douglas to Modernize Transport Planes

Santa Monica, Calif., Jan. 23 (AP).—A moderization program for some 6000 DC-3 and C-47 transports was announced today by plane maker Donald W. Douglas.

The silvery, twin-engine ships have been the workhorses of cargo and passenger air travel since they entered airline service in 1935 and saw world-wide service during World War II. Douglas said modifications would extend their life indefinitely beyond the present obsolescence deadline of 1952. The C-47 is the military designation for the DC-3.

Professors Fight Red Ouster, Demand Association Intervene

For this teaching to be in the hands of men who secretly belong to an organization advocating the complete overthrow if the American system should not be tolerated."

Eby, Ethel and Jacobs admitted long-time membership in the Communist Party but said they had resigned in 1941, 1945 and 1946 respectively.

3 Will Sign Affidavits

All three said they would sign the non-Communist affidavits. Eby said he did not understand the meaning and conditions of the two-year probation and would ask President Allen for a fuller explanation.

"Whatever they require of me, I intend to comply," Ethel said.

Phillips and Butterworth admitted they are Communists but challenged the regents to fire them on that ground, and claimed "academic freedom." Gundlach could not be pinned down on past or present party membership, but was shown to have been allied with more than a dozen Communist front organizations, the regents said.

Gundlach expressed his status thus:

"No one can prove that I am and I cannot prove that I am not."

All six had been faculty members for 20 years or more.

Two Challenge Action

Phillips and Butterworth issued a joint statement declaring that the university's action "cannot and will not be permitted to stand."

"It represents a most serious blow to academic freedom and traditional civil liberties," they said. "We have appealed to the American Association of University Professors to intervene in our behalf. We also appeal to all people to support the traditional American right of the individual to believe as his conscience directs."

Gundlach later issued a similar statement.

In Washington, Ralph Himstead, executive secretary of the American Association of University Professors, refused to comment on the dismissals.

He said the case would be investigated by the association's standing committee on academic freedom of tenure and that there would be "no pronouncement" until the inquiry is completed.

Claiming that they had been "prejudged," Phillips and Butterworth cited the report of an 11-man faculty committee that showed they were "without academic fault, competent as scholars, and objective as teachers."

"Judicial Approach"

[However, writing about the case from Seattle for the New York Herald Tribune, T. V. Smith, Maxwell Professor of Citizenship at Syracuse University and former member of the House of Representatives from Illinois, had this to say:

["A conspicuous aspect of the whole process, including the final hearing before the regents, was the judicial approach, the lack of rancor, and with high regard shown by both the faculty committee and the board of regents for due process of law. The term 'witch hunt' is easily pronounced. But witch hunts have a way of perpetrating indiscriminate judgment, resorting to impeachment by assumption and guilt by association."

[Smith is author of several books on the American way of life and allied topics.]

Basis For Dismissals

The regents were confined to the five causes for dismissial listed in the universtiy's administrative code—"incompetency, neglect of duty, physicial or mental incapacity, dishonesty, immorality and conviction of a felony involving moral turpitude."

Phillips and Butterworth were fired on grounds of incompetency, dishonesty and neglect of duty. Dr. Allen said he considered them incompetent as teachers, because, "as members of the Communist Party, they are not free agents to seek the truth." He considered them dishonest by reason of their secret membership in the party, and he charged them with neglect of duty because, as members of the party, "they have not maintained the free status required of a teacher."

Gundlach was fired on the basis of "neglect of duty by unresponsive and evasive answers to questions by President Allen and a background of unsatisfactory relations" with the university administration.

The faculty committee on tenure and academic freedom had conducted a full-dress tenure trial lasting seven weeks and submitted an 81-page report to Dr. Allen and the board of regents.

Dave Beck, executive vice president of the International Teamsters Union, made a special plane trip from Chicago to sit with the board.

The tenure trial of the six professors was the result of testimony given before the State legislative committee on subversive activities at an open hearing last summer into Communist infiltration at the university.

Reds Active at Oregon, Student Leader Says

Corvallis, Oreg., Jan. 22 (AP).—A student leader on the Oregon State College campus charged today that "there are certain people on this campus for the sole purpose of converting students to the cause of communism."

Thomas House, Portland, wrote in the campus daily paper, Barometer, that "Communism is a real factor on this campus." He is president of the Associated Students.

His column discussed the recent protests of the Young Progressives of America against the Barometer policies.

He declared that Communist believers "appeal to the religious side, the workingman's side, or anything possible to gain an opening wedge, or breakthrough, through which they pour a saturated solution of high-powered cure-all that later is admitted to be communism."

The college president, A. L. Strand, said, "While we probably have less of this sort of activity (Communist) than the average campus, we undoubtedly have some, hence it is gratifying to see the responsible student leaders recognize the situation and thus taking steps to guard against it."

'Actedron' Unknown to Drug Experts

Washington psychiatrists, neurologists and drug experts said yesterday they never before heard of a "will-destroying" drug described by a London weekly as one to be used by Hungarian Communists on Josef Cardinal Mindszenty.

According to the Catholic weekly, the Tablet, a drug called "actedron" will be given to the cardinal before his trial on charges of high treason.

The article in the Tablet said it is common knowledge that political prisoners of Soviet-occupied countries are given the drug after being starved and deprived of water. At first, it produces self-confidence, then a reaction which includes a strong headache and vertigo, according to the article.

The later effects are described as a sense of uncertainty, a blind urge to obey the slighest orders and inability to say no to anything.

While "actedron"—apparently a trade name—seemed to be unknown to local drug experts, a visiting neurologist-psychiatrist from Argentina told The Washington Post yesterday that a Hungarian firm in Buenos Aires markets benzadrine under the trade name of "Aktedol."

If that is the same drug described as "actedron," a local psychiatrist said, it would have the effect of making the victim garrulous, undiscriminating and lacking in inhibitions, but would not cause him to "confess" to crimes of which he was not guilty.

Dr. Erwin E. Nelson, chief of the new drug section of the United States Food and Drug Administration, whose long career as a pharmacology professor in three universities and Government work has established him as a drug expert, said it was possible that the article referred to one of the scopolamines.

Scopolamine, or hyocine, was introduced 15 or 20 years ago as a so-called "truth serum," whose most characteristic effect is to "make it difficult to think up wrong answers," Dr. Nelson explained. Used in childbirth in conjunction with morphine, it produces "twilight sleep" and loss of memory.

Local psychiatrists who also mentioned scopolamine as possibly the drug referred to pointed out that it would not have the "will-destroying" effects described.

Fair Deal For D. C.

Washington's need for additional revenue is more acute today than it has been for several years. If the local budget is to be balanced, Congress apparently has no alternative to enactment of a District sales tax. The Commissioners are well advised to press for action on their sales-tax bill at the earliest opportunity. Even a 2 per cent sales levy, however, will scarcely meet the emergency of the moment to say nothing of financing the program of public improvements that the city so urgently needs. It seems to us shortsighted to let this favorable opportunity for revenue legislation pass without also attempting to correct the inequities of, and increase the revenue from, the local income tax.

When the House of Representatives wrote the present discriminatory District income tax into the law in 1947, Senator Harry P. Cain said that if its inequities could not be eliminated, the "proper" and "honest" course would be "to encourage the Congress to get rid of the income-tax structure in its entirety in this community." We expressed agreement with this view at the time. It is now fully apparent, however, that the District cannot sacrifice any source of revenue. That fact points to the urgency of trying once more to induce Congress to remove the shameful favoritism of the present income-tax law.

As Richard D. Drain points out in an article in the current Journal of the District Bar Association, the local income tax enacted a decade ago applied only to persons "domiciled" in the District. That eliminated a vast number of people who live here and enjoy all manner of community services but claim to be domiciled elsewhere. When efforts were made to correct this inequity two years ago, the House wrote into the new bill a provision exempting Government employes from the local tax. On its face a measure exempting Federal employes from income taxation imposed on other residents of the seat of Government is a glaring injustice.

The tax assessor has testified that income-tax returns come in from only 88,000 of an estimated 200,000 who should be paying their share of the city's expenses. Such unequal application of the law is inexcusable in any circumstances. When the city is desperate for revenue, the blanket exemption given to Government employes looms up as an outrage not to be tolerated without protest. Certainly the new Congress ought to be given a fresh opportunity to correct this blunder, and the sales-tax bill, which will apparently have to be passed in any event, affords a convenient vehicle for this purpose.

Eating The Pope

Only those who are capable of believing whatever they are told to believe will give credit to the confession that the Communist government of Hungary says it has obtained from Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty. To say that the confession is fraudulent, however, is not to preclude the possibility that the signature of the imprisoned primate may have been obtained to the text of the statement quoted in the Yellow Book published at Budapest. The great contribution of our age to the art of statecraft is the knowledge of those techniques by which the strongest men may be broken down. No other set of politicians, not even the Nazis, possessed such perfect techniques as the Communist police.

Cardinal Mindszenty's record during the Nazi occupation, and his whole course of action up to the time of his arrest, seem testimony enough that he is an unusually strong man. But it does not follow that he would be impervious to every form of torture that his jailers can devise. Other strong men have confessed to fantastic crimes as a means of purchasing for their families an immunity to torture or enslavement. Whether Mindszenty could be induced to make such bargains seems doubtful; for though he has said that allowances must be made for lay persons who yield to political terror, the clergy have no choice but martyrdom. Nevertheless, in his last pastoral letter, Cardinal Mindszenty did envisage an extremity at which his own agony might prove stronger than his will, and therefore instructed his people to disregard any confession to which his name might be signed.

By sanctioning this arrest the Kremlin has embarked on a course from which it cannot retreat, and thus it appears that Mindszenty's doom is certain. Henceforth the war between the Kremlin and Vatican will be intense and unremitting. It will be a war without fronts or frontiers, waged on both sides by men eager to risk any danger in the advancement of their cause. The war may continue throughout the rest of this century, and something of its nature may be surmised from a recently published book called God's Underground (Appleton, Century), dealing with the missionary adventures of a Roman Catholic priest who traveled through Russia in disguise and came into contact with the growing resistance movement there. This movement, which appears to be largely religious in character, has, according to some other sources, infiltrated to very high quarters within the Russian Communist Party.

The Kremlin would not have taken a step so decisive as the arrest of Mindszenty unless it were confident of ultimate victory in this conflict. But history gives several examples of a similar confidence, among them Napoleon, who was powerful enough to arrest a Pope. That incident gave rise to a proverb, which perhaps the men in the Kremlin might have done well to consider: Qui mange le pape en meurt!

Sliding Meat Prices

Sharp declines in meat prices and a drop in prices of live cattle to the lowest levels in more than a year and a half coincide with reports that great herds of sheep and cattle are facing starvation on snow-covered ranges in the West. An indeterminate number of animals on farms and in barnyards, as well as those on ranges, have already died, victims of prolonged, bitter cold and the blocking of feed supply lines. In other sections of the country, drought has cut down the number of cattle on ranges and drastically reduced the size of the calf crop.

As the numbers of cattle have been declining since 1945, the prospect of further declines from existing low levels might be expected to boost cattle and beef prices. However, beef production is a slow process, that takes about three years to complete. Then, too, unfavorable weather conditions and previous declines in meat prices have spurred shipments of livestock to market for slaughtering. The result is a more than seasonal increase in current meat supplies at a time when consumer resistance to still extremely high prices is steadily growing.

The Department of Agriculture hazards a cautious opinion that there are "some indication" that the price drop in meat animals and meat supply is "greater than can be accounted for entirely by the rising supplies, and this may be an indication of some weakening in the demand for meat from the high level reached last summer." If this is the real explanation of the current drop in meat prices—and there is no reason to doubt it—further price declines may occur, regardless of the inroads made on livestock herds by bad weather conditions.

Juvenile Crime

The story of "Sylvia the Safecracker," aged 14, has its humorous aspects, but it is none the less shocking to a community that considers itself civilized. This youngster is one of three girls, the other two being 16 and 17 years of age, arrested for participation in two holdups in company with a young former Marine. There is something tragically lacking in a society which permits the delinquency of young girls to go to the extreme of robbery at the point of a revolver before anything is done about it.

Nor can one miss the irony in the boasting of this 14-year-old delinquent that she broke into a house in the expectation that her crime would enable her to join a 17-year-old "pal" in the District's Industrial Home School. Too often in the past our ipstitutions for the care of juvenile delinquents have proved to be training schools in crime. The pitiful inadequacy of their retraining programs has made the Juvenile Court reluctant to send offending youngsters to them. When crimes of the sort committed by these girls occur, the community ought to be able to feel that the youngsters who have begun life with such a tragically distorted set of values will be given every opportunity to reshape their thinking and patterns of conduct. But no such assumption can be made. The stark truth is that the District has never had a system of handling delinquents which has offered them a fair chance of graduating into responsible citizenship.

Numbers Racket: A Menace

A recent issue of Collier's magazine contained an informative and somewhat disturbing article by Mr. Albert Q. Maisel about the numbers racket which, it seems, has grown into a two-billion-dollar industry with all sorts of sinister ramifications. If the facts are as Mr. Maisel describes them, we are inclined to agree with an editorial that accompanied the article that the business is much too dangerous to be tolerated. Anyway, we recommend Mr. Maisel's article to our readers, with some confidence that it will persuade them to support the effort of Mr. George Morris Fay, the United States District Attorney for Washington, to drive the racket out of this city, where it has long been entrenched.

The most startling bit of information from Mr. Maisel is that the growth of this form of gambling has been used by promoters in an effort to gain control of labor unions. Playing the numbers is no longer a vice peculiar to poverty-stricken slum dwellers. The more profitable area of the racket is now among persons able and willing to pay dollars rather than nickels or dimes for tickets. This extension of the racket came about during the war when the policy writers took jobs in war plants to escape the draft, and found it easy to make clients among the other employes. Presently, says Mr. Maisel, the > big-shot bankers got wise to the possibilities . . . They concentrated on securing the type of job for their writers that would allow them to move around their departments, such as sweeping or maintenance work. Those that scorned such menial tasks got jobs as foremen. Some entered union elections and got themselves placed as shop stewards . . . The gamblers who had muscled in as shop stewards threw their weight around in union elections.

At the Ford plant at River Rouge one numbers operator became for a time head of the union's foundry committee, and thereby spokesman for more than a thousand men. Meanwhile, the money which had passed from the pay envelopes of the Ford workers into the pockets of the lesser and greater racketeers had reached a total of many millions of dollars.

The ultimate control of the numbers racket, according to Mr. Maisel, is in the hands of a powerful gambling syndicate, organized on a national basis and having headquarters in Pittsburgh and New York. Where the profit warrants this syndicate will even undertake to alter published reports of clearing house figures or other statistical totals upon which the winning number is based. If we may believe Mr. Maisel, the syndicate is powerful enough to plant compositors for this purpose in newspaper composing rooms.

Many newspapers, including The Washington Post, have sought to discourage the racket by ceasing to publish clearing house reports, Treasury receipts, pari-mutuel totals and other such figures, or by publishing them only in round-number approximations. But since not all newspapers are willing to observe this rule, its efficacy is doubtful. Moreover, almost any series of digits occurring purely by chance, such as street numbers in classified advertisements for example, would serve the purpose of the gamblers as well.

Collier's editorial suggests that wherever the numbers racket flourishes on a large scale "the police tolerate the operation," and that if this is so, "some politician behind the police is probably collecting graft and providing protection." This does seem to us necessarily to follow. Mr. Maisel makes it pretty clear that little is to be gained from recurrent arrests of policy writers, whose fines of course are promptly paid by their employers. To break up the racket by arresting the big operators sounds easier than it probably is. They may be where the police cannot lay hands on them, or matters may have been so skillfully arranged that evidence capable of being sustained in court cannot be obtained.

The bottom difficulty, of course, is nothing more than the willingness of millions of men and women to gamble in a lottery in which the odds are utterly fraudulent, and is, as Mr. Maisel shows, frequently so rigged that a chance of winning is not even mathematically possible. Gambling, of course, is an ingrained human habit that can no more be eradicated than the habit of drinking. Whether gambling among friends, or in circumstances where the laws of chance are decently respected, as at pari-mutuel race tracks for example, is sinful or innocent, opinions differ. But Mr. Maisel's article leaves no doubt that the numbers gambler is a danger not only to himself but to the whole of society.

Resources Committee

The sweeping reorganization in scope of the Senate Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs is an encouraging portent of a more integrated congressional policy on natural resources. Formerly the five committees amalgamated in the present body limited their concern pretty much to questions of reclamation and public lands affecting primarily a few Western States. Now, under the chairmanship of Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, the Interior Committee will take in the whole purview of natural resources. One of the committee's first acts will be to review the Department of the Interior's "functions, problems and hopes."

The massing of congressional responsibility for the development and conservation of the country's physical assets under one roof has great implications for the national defense. For it is only by treating resources as a unit that the weak spots can be detected, scarce materials husbanded, and new methods and supplies developed. Actually, for example, coal resources have a close relation to tidelands oil and to the program for public power.

The committee will of course be hampered by the anomalies in the administration of natural resources by the executive branch of the Government. There is more reason for the administrative setup than appears on the surface, but it hardly makes sense to have such agencies as the Bureau of Land Management and the Bureau of Reclamation operating under the Department of the Interior while such allied functions as those of the Forest Service and Soil Conservation Service belong to the Department of Agriculture. Doubtless the Hoover Commission will have something to say about consolidating a part of these operations. One of the jobs of the O'Mahoney Committee ought to be to lend its influence and support to a sensible streamlining of governmental policy toward the resources which are the foundation of national well-being.

Wider Social Security

I hear that unemployment is growing—and a cold chill shudders itself down my spine. But, says the radio commentator reassuringly, this time there would be no such widespread suffering as there was in the early 30's. This time there is a cushion of unemployment insurance to soften the shock.

Somehow, I am not reassured. For as far as I am concerned unemployment insurance does not exist in this land of ours. Having devoted most of my working life to public service agencies, I am one of those outside the protection of the present feeble-enough social protection system. It is nice to think that others are protected, but in my own life insecurity is just as great as ever.

Isn't it about time that Congress paid attention to the fact that our social security fabric, such as it is, is a crazy-quilt which covers some but leaves plenty of others out in the cold?

Adjusting Rents

Since the Government has announced the policy of continuing rent control for two more years, what about the aging property? Under low rentals and the increase in taxes and costs of maintenance, improvements are discouraged, in fact, in most cases are prohibited.

For example, here in Los Angeles we have many three and four-room furnished apartments renting for the ridiculously low price of $25 and $30 per month. How can property be properly kept up on such returns? True, there has been the provision to allow a 15 per cent advance in rentals, but is dependent on tying up the property with a lease and the willingness of the tenant to pay the additional 15 per cent. The tenant has only to refuse and cannot be evicted. The 15 per cent increase is wholly inadequate to meet the increased costs.

Up to this time practically every advantage has been given to the tenant. From now on the rights of the owner should be given more hospitable consideration. The owners of new housing have been given an undue advantage over the owners of older housing. We are only asking that our legislators take cognizance of these facts and take means to preserve and protect the housing that we have in order that fairness and justice may be done and that the housing problem may be effectively solved.

Joe Louis' Record

In regard to Shirley Povich's sports article of January 17 which began, "Ain't Joe Louis the Lucky Guy?"—all due respects to Buddy Baer, who was indeed a great fighter. This writer does not intend to strip him of any praise due him, but to say his misfortune in an automobile collision is the only reason Louis has been heavyweight champion for the last seven years rates a question mark.

I have attended every one of Louis' title bouts with the exception of about three. I have seen him defend his title against all types of sluggers from the earliest of his ring days to the present day, barring none. His record as a pugilist denotes and supports the idea that the man is a born fighter. All evidence and facts concerning his pugilistic career, if weighed and justly considered, would point to this fact and not to the fact that it was an accident that made him champion for seven years.

German Factories

The cry of the German people against the dismantling of their former war factories arises time and again, the most recent one being over the dismantling of a steel plant in Bochum. The claim invariably made is that these plants are now employed in, or can be employed for peaceful production. This is true. However, the danger lies in the fact that these plants can some day again be used by an aggressive Germany to produce destructive materials.

In studying the history of the Krupp armaments concern sometime ago I came across a piece of information which seemed very interesting. It appears that during World War I Krupp had its own armaments proving grounds at Meppen, Germany. Because the Versailles Treaty prohibited the maintenance of shooting grounds, Krupp had the Meppen grounds converted into a large-scale agricultural and cattle farm. In its 1938 annual report, however, Krupp no longer made any reference to its "farm" but it did list as an asset its Schiessplatz (shooting grounds) in Meppen.

We must be very careful in the matter of allowing Germany a war potential and in allowing the Germans a voice in the dismantling of former war factories.

Indonesian Case

Please accept this as a rebuttal to Mr. Brown's letter of January 15, entitled "The Dutch Case."

A year and a half of traveling through the Dutch and republic territory of these islands, in 1947 and 1948, failed to reveal to me a single evidence of hammer and sickle being displayed. The Communist revolt of October, 1948, was quickly stamped out by the republic without aid from the Dutch. Wherever there is a strong and sincere nationalist movement, there is no room for communism.

Yes, some of the leaders previously were Communists. But political life in the Indies never did give a person the opportunity to join a political party; any "party" that tried to do more than to improve local civic conditions, was classified as communistic, and its leaders were exiled to New Guinea as "political undesirables."

I cannot see how Mr. Brown can imply that the republic is unfit to rule itself. Rule itself it did from VJ-Day to December, 1948, despite the Dutch naval blockade, and other economic boycotts. Moreover, the republic gained de facto recognition from some 30 countries, including the United States.

Finally, I object to referring to Soekarno and other leaders as collaborators. After the harsh, oppressive rule of the prewar colonial Dutch, working with the Japs was the lesser of the two evils. Roxas "collaborated" with the Japs in the Philippines, but (like Soekarno) was able to prove to his people that he worked for the good of the country—and consequently was elected first President of the Philippine Republic.

Rights Of Union Members

Marquis Childs in his excellent column of January 11 on the recent Supreme Court decision upholding legislation outlawing the closed shop, suggests that the way to check the abuse of power by those in control of unions is to limit compulsory union membership. He cites the British and Swedish unions as examples of voluntary unionism.

But in both these countries, unions became powerful because union members refused to work with nonmembers. Once a union was well established, as in shipbuilding, coal mining or building trades, membership, as the Webbs point out in their authoritative study of British unions, became virtually compulsory by force of this action on the part of the unionists.

In this country, too, the closed shop is most firmly established in the old craft unions who achieved it without legal help, indeed in spite of legal barriers, by exercising the right to refuse to work with nonmembers. This right is probably protected by constitutional guarantees; at least, the concurring opinion of Mr. Justice Rutledge in the closed shop cases assures us that the recent decision outlawing contracts does not touch this "momentous" issue:

Hence, once a union achieves a dominant majority position, it it likely to become all-inclusive or practically so. The abuse of power by those in control of unions is not to be checked by hindering union membership; rather, membership should be encouraged by law, but the law should protect the rights of members within the union. For this purpose, I have submitted to the chairman of the Senate Labor Committee the following draft bill:

"Section 1. Members of unions shall have the right to free speech, free press and free assembly concerning union affairs, and where union membership is a condition of employment, no person shall suffer a loss of employment or employment opportunities by reason of expulsion or suspension from union membership or other disciplinary action imposed on him by a union or officers of a union, as a result of the exercise of these rights, provided that he has not exercised these rights in such a way as to undermine or tend to undermine union institutions.

"Section 2. Any person suffering a loss of employment or employment opportunities in violation of Section 1 shall be entitled to recover from the union whose officers or agents committed the wrongful action twice the amount of lost wages and other earnings, plus a reasonable attorney's fee and costs of litigation, provided that before commencing suit he has exhausted all reasonable appeals within the union."

This proposal protects the democratic ideals which are professed by all unions and practiced by most of them. It protects needful union authority against the abuse of individual rights. The chief objection to it is that it permits legal intervention in the internal affairs of unions. However, the draft stipulates that a member must exhaust all reasonable appeals within the union before commencing suit. Moreover, judicial precedents in this field confirm the belief that the courts will be conservative and interpret the law in the light of established practices and ideals of the union movement itself.

The New Republic

THE POWER OF FREEDOM, by Max Ascoli. (Farrar, Straus, $2.75.)

This little book is of interest, if for no other reason than its cheerful view of the future relationship of man and the state. Dr. Ascoli believes that a new political order is now in process of evolution in which there will be more rather than less freedom for us all. What is even more surprising is his theory that power and freedom, so far from being antithetical, are actually complementary; that is to say the possibilities of political freedom, and the areas in which it may be exercised, are, or at any rate can be, increased with every advance in intellectual and technical knowledge. Thus to suggest that man already possesses too much knowledge for his own good, or that each addition to his power over nature increases his power for evil, or that it would have been better if the secret of nuclear energy had remained undiscovered, is, as Dr. Ascoli tells us, to be both fallacious and cowardly.

Freedom, it appears, is something which arises from a condition of life which permits a man to get as much out of his labor as he puts into it, and Dr. Ascoli, who is fond, now and then, of a vague and pompous phrase, calls this process "the recovery of energy." In other words, production and freedom are interrelated, and the more of one the greater possibility of the other. The history of freedom, then, begins with the invention of tools, and its various stages are marked by the perfection of new skills and by the progressive divisions of labor. Before the industrial revolution, I gather, freedom could be enjoyed only by tiny and privileged minorities; in the first century or so of the industrial era freedom could be enjoyed by large numbers only in certain specially favored nations. But now freedom is possible to all men everywhere. So far, of course, Dr. Ascoli is in accord with theoretical communism, which envisages the evolution of all humanity into a classless society in which the habit of cooperative labor will have been transformed into instinct, making government unnecessary, and men will work without other incentive than the social good. But the Communist fallacy, says Dr. Ascoli, lies in assuming that the productive process is an end in itself. The real importance of productive techniques, he argues, is that they make unnecessary the total absorption of men by their labor. They permit the development of men as persons; but the fruits of this development are nevertheless reinvested in their labor, thereby improving its quality and enlarging the general heritage of civilization.

Now, what a man does with his life apart from his labor is what Dr. Ascoli means by freedom. The better use that a man makes of this freedom the more secure it becomes. Freedom of speech, for example, is best advanced by using language for purposes of communication and understanding instead of for the sake of "fostering ignorance and prejudice." As the number of those who learn to speak wisely and responsibly is increased, the greater the tolerance that may safely be extended to "the gabble of the malicious and the silly"; although tolerance in any event has limits. The area of life in which this freedom is operative is what is meant by politics as distinguished from economics; and apparently the great problem of the future is whether politics, meaning the free exercise of communication and intelligence and the recognition of responsibility, shall direct the economic life in the interest of the common good, or whether economics will continue to shape the character of society. The bankruptcy of economic liberalism, or laissez faire, Dr. Ascoli thinks is traceable to its subordination of politics to economics, and to its exaltation of man as a producer and consumer rather than as a citizen. This is the principle which connects liberalism to Marxism and Fascism. For if it was industrialism that made freedom possible for large numbers of men, it was economic liberalism, says Dr. Ascoli that created the great threat to freedom in the shape of an uprooted proletarian mass. The victory of democracy over communism, then, will depend far less upon military victory over Russia than in finding a way to reabsorb the uprooted mass into the life of the democratic commonwealth. Thus the Communist danger serves the valuable purpose of making us aware of the nature of the problem. Similarly, the historical example of Hitler has shown us what madness lies in the attempt to combat one form of totalitarianism with another.

The mortal perils to which the political institutions of the West have been exposed have obliged us to inquire why such dangers were ever possible, and so to discover that Hitler was "the agent of destruction, not the cause of it," that his role were merely to organize and to arm the decadence and corruption already inherent in modern society. The knowledge that this was so, Dr. Ascoli thinks, should cure us of the dangerous delusion that political rights or institutions exist in the abstract, or inhere in the nature of the universe. Politics cannot be separated from concrete human beings, and the word is meaningless apart from human thought and behavior. The form of society which should emerge from the recognition of this truth should be one in which economics exist for men rather than men for economics. It should be a society in which public affairs take their direction from the needs and desires of an articulate people, a people which understands that freedom consists of a succession of choices made possible by innumerable past choices, but also involving all choices to be made in future.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Inaugural

NEVER before on so solemn an occasion has an American President promised so much to so many. Nevertheless, the great vision of the inaugural address could be realized if the people of the world were in fact divided into those who believe in the false philosophy of communism and the true philosophy of democracy.

Lippmann

For the population, the resources, and the knowledge in the non-Communist portion of humanity are immeasurably greater than in the other. Backed by the military power of the United States, assisted by its material contributions, educated by its technicians, and inspired by its declarations, there would be, but for the machinations of the Communists, a clear and open road for all mankind to freedom, justice, peace and prosperity.

YET in the cold, gray dawn of the morning after we know that it is not only the new 30-year-old devil in Moscow who bars the ascent into the earthly paradise but also the old devils within ourselves and all other men. The true philosophy of democracy has made its way slowly, and very imperfectly, among a few nations occupying a small and favored part of the globe. For most of mankind it is at best an aspiration which is dimly defined and little practiced. In so far as they are misled by the false philosophy of communism, it is not only because of its lies and deceits but because the true philosophy is so hard to practice, demanding that nations and that individuals should be so much more rational, so much more public-spirited, so much more habituated to wisdom and to virtue, than in fact they are.

For these reasons an exclusive, or even a principal, preoccupation with the evils of the false philosophy, can become an insurmountable obstacle to the practice of the true philosophy. It can blind men to the real problems of good government. It can allow them to evade them, avoid them, to hide the issues from themselves, and to shirk the effort and the sacrifices from which it is so natural to shrink. For while a good democrat will certainly be an anti-Communist, those who are solely anti-Communist are not likely to be good democrats. They are likely to think that if only they hate the false philosophy enough, then automatically and ex-officio so to speak, they are the exemplars of the true philosophy.

THAT is why, I dare to suggest, that when the President promised so much to so many he would have made his task less difficult if he had been as emphatic about the difficulties of the true philosophy as he was about the evils of the false. For the plain truth is that he committed this Nation so unqualifiedly to mere anti-communism that he will find his influence and his bargaining power seriously diminished.

If all these immense American contributions are to be had by nations if only they are sufficiently anti-Communist, what inducement do we still have to offer them to make the disagreeable but necessary sacrifices, what pressure can we exert for reform and reconstruction, what restraints can we impose upon ambition and arbitrariness? What is the good of saying in one breath that the countries of the Marshall Plan must stop inflation by self help and mutual aid and become solvent by 1952, when in the next breath we tell them that they are our allies against the false philosophy? In 1952 they will still be our allies against the false philosophy, even though they have not faced their problems.

HOW IS Mr. Truman going to convince the politicians who do not want to face their problems that he will not subsidize them if they shirk their problems? There was nothing in the inaugural address to suggest that the United States might withhold its subsidies and its guaranties. Therefore there was nothing that could compel or induce anyone, who has gotten used to living on the dole and under the shelter of American power, to take the trouble to get off the dole and to fend for himself.

The wisest and bravest of our friends abroad would tell him privately—though few could say it publicly—that in so far as our aid and our guaranties tend to become unconditional, they prevent, rather than assist, the recovery and the stabilization of the world.

THERE can be no quarrel with the President's objectives, or serious opposition to the four major courses of action which he outlined. But the new vision will not be realized easily, or at all, if we disregard the teachings of experience in human affairs.

The old diplomacy was, especially in its public declarations, expressed in understatement. Its promises and its threats were extremely restrained in their language. The object was to say less than was meant. This restraint was not merely a conventional politeness. It was the result of experience which taught men that if they promised too much or threatened too sharply, they would find themselves thereafter the prisoners of their own words. The good diplomat knows that he can exert influence only in so far as he retains his own freedom of action.

Therefore he will not, as an American statesman of another generation once said to me, use his feet to stamp into the ground wooden pegs that later on he will have to pull out with his teeth.

Ickes Urges Huge Tideland Oil Trust Fund to Aid Education

Milwaukee, Jan. 23 (AP).—Former Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes proposed today that a gigantic trust fund for education be set up with income from Federal tidelands oil.

Ickes said one reliable estimate of oil along the Texas and Louisiana coasts alone was placed at 10,500,000,000 barrels. At the prevailing price of $2.62 a barrel in California, he said, this would bring in $27,510,000,000.

This figure would be greatly increased, he added, if oil along the California, Mississippi, Florida or other State coast lines were counted in or if the harvest of oil would run above expectations.

Ickes suggested that the Federal trust be modeled after the Rockefeller Foundation, which, by comparison, "would become a dwarf."

Ickes' unwavering views on the controversial tidelands question led indirectly to his resignation from President Truman's Cabinet.

He pointed with pride to the United States Supreme Court's decision holding that the Federal Government has a paramount interest in oil deposits along the California Coast.

He also criticized Attorney General Tom Clark for grouping Louisiana with Texas in filing a Supreme Court suit to test the title to the tidelands there.

Texas' situation was unique, he said, because of the "particular conditions under which it joined the Union."

Bill of Rights Shrine Uprooted By Vandals

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Jan. 23 (U.P.).—Vandals uprooted two dozen tombstones and monuments last night in the cemetery of St. Paul's Church, Eastchester, a national shrine of the bill of rights, Rev. W. Harold Weigle, rector of the church, said today.

He said a similar occurance took place 14 years ago and that the vandals were never discovered.

The church stands on the site of an old village green where newspaperman John Peter Zenger covered an election in 1733 for the New York Gazette. His story got him in trouble with the colonial governor and the sedition trial which followed established the principle of freedom of the press in this country.

3 Guardsmen's Bodies Recovered In Plane Crash

Newport News, Va., Jan. 23 (AP).—Divers today had recovered the bodies of three of four Virginia National Guard airmen who died yesterday when their B-26 plane crashed into the James River near Fort Eustis.

Two bodies—those of Second Lieut. John L. Harris, pilot, and Pvt. Benjamin F. Renick—were brought up today. The body of Sergt. R. F. Drewry was found yesterday.

Still missing was the body of Sergt. Carl J. Toomey. The search will be resumed Monday.

All of the victims were from Richmond.

The Plumper Cheek

ROME.—When one sees an old friend after a long separation the plumper or more haggard cheek, the receding or more auburn hair, fly to the eye. In the same way, when one returns to this enchanting city after 14 months of absence, the change in atmosphere seems downright astonishing.

In November, 1947, before this country could be sure of American aid, the members of the Italian government were talking about as cheerfully (and with good reason) as the Roman Senate must have talked when Alaric was at the gates. But now the threatened Communist triumph in Italy is no longer possible and problems of foreign relations are the main preoccupation.

The problem of Italy's adherence to the projected Atlantic Pact is of course preeminent. And although this problem is being discussed in an entirely new atmosphere, the effect on the American observer is none the less to emphasize again the vastness of the new world responsibility of the United States. Last year only American aid could forestall internal catastrophe here. And this year admission of Italy into the Atlantic Pact will add another element to a new Mediterranean pattern in which the United States now has the role of a major power.

UNTIL RECENTLY a policy of neutrality was strongly advocated by two highly diverse Italian factions—the Vatican, with its powerful influence on the Italian Right, and the Socialists of the Left. In the last weeks, it can now be disclosed, the views of the Vatican have changed. Nothing, of course, will change the puppet Socialist party of Nenni, which is totally controlled by the Communists. But even the Independent Socialists of the Saragat faction still have doubts about the Atlantic Pact which must be resolved at their forthcoming party conference.

The conference's outcome is important because Premier de Gasperi is exceedingly anxious to retain the Saragat Socialists in his government. If their vote is adverse, Italian adherence to the Atlantic Pact may be somewhat delayed. It can also be disclosed, however, that the Italian government has already informed the State Department, voluntarily and on its own initiative, of its disposition to join the pact if invited to do so.

At the conference of the Western Union powers in Paris, the British opposed such an invitation to Italy, on the ground that Italy's best contribution to a western defense would be to remain neutral. French and American strategists argue, on the contrary, that the concept of Italian neutrality is imaginary. Western Union's planned defense of the line of the Rhine will be useless if the back door to France in the south is not secure. And if Italy is left undefended, any aggressor can simply advance down the Po Valley corridor and batter in the French back door.

IF THIS VIEW prevails in the present Washington talks about the Atlantic Pact, it may be expected that the 15 divisions allowed Italy under the peace treaty will receive American arms and that in case of war, the great air base at Foggia will become available for use by our B-29s. This will be only one element, however, in the larger Mediterranean pattern already mentioned. Issues of strategy involved in this new pattern were the real cause of the foolish recent bedevilment over the Italian colonies.

Very briefly, the desire for a powerful British base in the eastern Mediterranean caused the British to obstruct the return of Cyrenaica and Tripolitania to Italy, while sheer anti-Italian prejudice seems to have been the source of the project for giving Eritrea to Abyssinia. A far more sensible plan is now in the wind. Britain will retain Cyrenaica and the British will build up their main base there, with ports at Benghazi and Tobruk, supply depots, air fields, etc. The Italians will at least be restored to a major share in control of Tripolitania and Eritrea, but joint basing arrangement may also be made in these colonies under the Atlantic Pact. And this scheme will be somewhat reluctantly accepted by the Italian government.

With these arrangements, and peace in Israel, the postwar balance of power in the Mediterranean will be at least established. In this balance the United States, never before a Mediterranean power in any sense, will play the following part:

We shall be allies, through the Atlantic Pact, with the other major Mediterranean powers, Britain, France and Italy. We shall be responsible for the independence of Greece and Turkey. We shall have our own air base at Wheeless Field in Tripoli, where the runway has already been lengthened for B-29s. We shall have peacetime use of the British base in Cyrenaica. And we shall have the use, in case of war, of Italian and French bases. In short, the Mediterranean influence once exerted by the British alone will now be the influence of an Anglo-American partnership.

OUR POLICY, in short, may be altering the course of history in other nations, as it has done here in Italy. But in the process, we are also being changed ourselves.

Caps Score 3d Straight Victory Over Knicks, 97-93

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

POVICH

AT NINE O'CLOCK Tuesday morning in Cleveland, Lou Boudreau will sign a contract with the Indians that will fetch him about $80,000 for his seven-month job as player-manager in the approaching season. It will be a full-dress ceremony in Bill Veeck's office with the press, radio and television already alerted by the club's public relations department.

The same club owners who shy off at divulging the salary of the average ball player on the grounds "it's a personal matter between the player and the club and not public information," are always eager to rush into print with the boast that they have an $80,000 man on their payroll.

They know it's good box-office to advertise that kind of a salary, in the eyes of the fan it makes a player more interesting, whether he's worth his wages or not. They can cheer him as a guy who is worth what he gets, or boo him as an $80,000 flop.

Babe Ruth was almost as much famed for his $80,000 salaries as for his home runs. It was Col. Jake Ruppert, of the Yankees, who set the style of making a production out of the signing rites. The Yankees cashed in on that kind of publicity and so did Ruth whose merest tummy ache was rated worthy of a news flash.

THE CURRENT $80,000 salaries of Boudreau and Bob Feller and Joe DiMaggio and Ted Williams are never to be confused with the straight pay and take-home wages of Ruth, however. Actually there never has been a man who was guaranteed as high a wage for playing basebal las the Babe who was always assured of his $80,000 without any conditional bonus clauses.

Bob Feller has revealed that of his $82,500 income from the Indians last season, only $40,000 was guaranteed him in salary. The balance of his pay accrued from a bonus arrangement on a sliding scale in drect proportion to the home attendance of the Indians. DiMaggio and Williams, too, work under bonus arrangements, and the Indians have stated that not all of Boudreau's wages will be straight salary.

The bonus arrangement is a device of the owners, and a smart one, to protect them against slumps either at the box office or in the player's performance. If the club doesn't draw as it hopes, it is not obliged to pay all of the fancy figure in the players contract. If the team has a smashing year at the gate, it can well afford to pay whatever the bonus calls for.

THE OWNERS ARE protecting themselves in another direction with their bonus provisions. Picture the situation if Feller, for example, came up with a dead arm this season after operating on an $80,500 salary. The Indians are limited under the baseball rules from cutting his pay more that 25 per cent for the following year and this Feller, if they retained him, could command no less than $60,000 even as a dead-arm pitcher.

But by putting him on a straight $40,000 salary with the other $40,000 as bonus pay, the Indians would be entitled to chop Feller down to $30,000 with propriety.

Babe Ruth had no such protection when he was making his big salaries. After drawing $75,000 a year, he was cut back to $50,000, a reduction of 33 1/3 per cent. But even at 50 grand a year, Ruth had far more take-home pay than the current $80,000 men who have to make their tributes to the Internal Revenue Bureau under a tax setup that Ruth never knew.

YOU'D HAVE TO SAY, however, that Boudreau came closer to warranting an $80,000 pay check than any man since Ruth. For the Indians last season, he was a more valuable man that Feller ever was to the club, more important to Cleveland than DiMag ever was to the Yankees and a bigger asset than Ted Williams was to the Red Sox. He was not only the best ball player in the league last season, but he maneuvered the Indians into the pennant and also a World Series triumph.

The fact is that Veeck is a lucky guy to have Boudreau around at this point. Veeck virtually stumbled into the 1948 pennant. It is common knowledge that he tried desperately to trade Boudreau to the Browns last winter, and the accepted story is that he desisted after taking a personal, sidewalk poll among Cleveland fans.

But that isn't the story that Bill DeWitt, general manager of the Browns, tells. "The trade was on even after Veeck sampled public opinion in Cleveland." Says DeWitt: "The only reason Veeck didn't go through with the trade was because the Browns called it off."

10,123 See McKinney, Feerick Steal Show

Special to The Post

New York, Jan. 23.—Bob Feerick, an old hand at giving the New York Knickerbockers a hard time, poured it on from the foul line tonight in the Washington Capitols' 97-93 victory over New York before 10,123 in Madison Square Garden. Feerick made good on 13 successive shots.

In the other branch of the scoring, Bones McKinney kept plopping field goals in most of the evening. McKinney contributed 26 points, Feerick 23.

The Caps' 97 points equalled the Garden's professional scoring record for one team. The combined score was a new Garden mark.

Palmer Braun Lead N. Y.

Washington's third straight victory this year over the Knicks, a victory which just about wrapped up the Eastern Division race in the Basketball Association of America, was easily the most exciting.

The Knicks, paced by Bud Palmer and Carl Braun, made a game of it. Both scored 23 points. This pair kept the New Yorkers in the running in the last period when Washington overhauled the Knicks and went ahead from an 83-83 score.

Tied 76-76 at the end of three quarters, the Eastern Division leaders poured in 21 points in the last 12 minutes to salt away the decision and increase their lead over the second place New Yorkers to 10 full games.

The Caps have won 30 of their 37 Basketball Association of America games.

Knicks Take Lead

Palmer gave the Knicks a four-point lead by scoring two quick baskets as the fourth quarter got under way.

Leo Katkaveck and Feerick rang the bell for the Caps to tie the score. The count was knotted three more times until Feerick scored with a basket that gave the Caps the lead to keep.

McKinney and Kleggie Hermsen encountered the ire of Referee Johnny Nucatola in the third period and were each assessed a technical foul for their petulance.

Burke Has 66, Takes Lead From Hogan

By Bob Myers

Long Beach, Calif., Jan. 23 (AP).—Firing a five-under-par 66, young Jack Burke of White Plains, N. Y., moved into the lead of the $10,000 Long Beach Open golf tournament today with a 54-hole score of 203.

Burke, a comparative newcomer among the top-ranking professionals, grabbed the lead from Ben Hogan, who shot a 70 for a total score of 204.

Freak weather, mixing hail, rain and sunshine, attended this third round of Long Beach's Inaugural Open tournament.

Play was over the short and narrow Lakewood Country Club with its par 35—36—71 course.

Three strokes back of Burke was Jimmy Demaret, who was once an assistant to young Burke's father, the late Jack Burke at the River Oaks Country Club in Houston, Tex. Demaret shot at 69 for 206.

Jim Ferrier of San Francisco posted a 71 for 207. Chick Harbert, of Northville, Mich., after rounds of 67 and 68 found the going rough today and took 73 blows for a total 208.

Hogan remains the favorite going into tomorrow's finals, however, his score today was 36, 34—70. For Hogan, it was a round almost as erratic as the weather.

He three-putted the first green and for four holes midway in the round was shooting birdies on one hole and missing his shots on the next. On the back nine he steadied and birdied two holes and was even on par for the rest of the way.

Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago stroked a 69 to go with previous rounds of 70 and 71 for a total of 210.

Lakers Win; Mikan Gets 33, Fulks 32

Minneapolis, Jan. 23 (AP). — Hot shooting Joe Fulks of Philadelphia maintained his 32-point average of the last five games but his Philadelphia Warriors dropped an 89-to-71 decision in a Basketball Association of America game with Minneapolis tonight.

Fulks was outscored by George Mikan's 33 points for the Lakers but was the backbone of Philadelphia's second-half attack which kept the Warriors in the game.

Fulks dropped 10 of his 24 shots. For Minneapolis, the victory was the twelfth in a row at home.

Vernon Expects to Fatten His Average By 20 Points With No Tribe Pitchers to Face

Chester, Pa., Jan. 23 (AP).—Mickey Vernon, the Cleveland Indians' new first baseman, says playing with the Tribe next season ought to add at least 20 points to his batting average.

"It's very simple," Vernon explained. "I won't have to bat against Bob Feller, Bob Lemon, Gene Bearden and the rest of the Cleveland pitchers any more. Instead, I'll be batting against Washington pitching."

The 30-year-old veteran came to Cleveland from Washington last month along with Pitcher Early Wynn in exchange for First Baseman Eddie Robinson and Pitchers Ed Klieman and Joe Haynes. Vernon batted .242 last season.

"It certainly is great to go from a seventh-place ball club to the world champions," Vernon said. "And the way I figure, the Indians should win the pennant again next season. I don't think Boston has good enough pitching to beat us.

Vernon said he was anxious for spring training to start and thinks he's in "pretty good shape." For conditioning he's been playing handball and volleyball every day at the YMCA here.

Celts Sign Cross Stars

Boston, Jan. 23 (AP).—The signing of Holy Cross Cocaptains George Kaftan and Dermie O'Connell was announced tonight by the Boston Celtics of the Basketball Association of America. No salary terms were disclosed.

The two New York natives who played their last college game last night, will finish final examinations this week and play their first pro game February 1 against the Rochester Royals at the Garden.

Boudreau Signs Tuesday

Cleveland, Jan. 23 (AP).—The contract conference which is expected to make Manager Lou Boudreau of the Cleveland Indians baseball's highest paid player was postponed tonight from tomorrow until Tuesday morning.

President Bill Veeck of the world champion club, telephoned from New York tonight to leave word with his front office that the flight he intended to take to Cleveland tonight was cancelled because of unfavorable weather.

Boudreau is en route by train from his home at Harvey, Ill.

When the words are over and the pen hits paper, Lou probably will have a raise of about $30,000 over last season. The guess is that the star shortstop will get a two-year contract calling for about $80,000 in straight salary and bonuses

Kovacs Win Two Crowns

St. Augustine, Fla., Jan. 23 (AP). Frank Kovacs, tall, hard-hitting netter from Oakland, Calif., staged a great rally to win the national professional clay courts tennis tournament today.

Second-seeded Welby Van Horn of Philadelphia faded after a flashy start and the favored Kokacs took the title match, 2—6, 4—6, 7—5, 6—3, 6—3.

Kovacs' driving serves and slams finally prevailed as Van Horn wore down in the 80-degree temperatures. More than 1000 spectators saw the long match.

Van Horn didn't exhaust all his shots in the singles. He and his partner, Jim Everet of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., came back to cop the doubles title.

They bested Bob Stubbs of Miami and Mitchell Gornto of White Plains, N. Y., 6—3, 7—5.

Ain't It a Shame?

Butte, Mont., Jan. 23 (AP).—Cold weather forced postponement of the annual Butte slalom tests today. Despite temperatures of about 30 below zero, skiers were ready and rarin' to go. But competition had to be called off when timers were unable to make stopwatches work in the congealing cold.

National Tennis Tourney Dates Are Moved Up

New York, Jan. 23 (AP).—California, which produces most of the good tennis players, today won its long fight to have the national championships at Forest Hills played at an earlier date.

After a long and spirited debate in which words flowed like water, the United States Lawn Tennis Association voted to conduct the big event from August 29 to September 5 this year—an advance of nearly two weeks from the '48 tournament.

West Coast officials have complained for years that the championships were held so late as to take all the polish off their own events in the early fall.

Mrs. Barger Wins U. S. Duckpin Meet

Baltimore, Jan. 23 (AP). — Mrs. Elizabeth (Toots) Barger tonight won the United States Ladies Open Duckpin Tournament here with a 10-game total of 1295.

The Baltimore bowling star beat out 71 other entries to win the $250 first money. Fifth money went to Evelyn Nickel, Washington.

Patty Berg Beats the Babe

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 23 (AP).—Patty Berg turned in a 74 today to win the Tampa Women's Open Golf Tournament with 295, equaling the women's competitive medal play record.

Mrs. Babe Zaharias also came up with a 74 over the 6093-yard par 70 Palma Ceia course for 296 total and second place.

Another stroke back at 297 was Louise Suggs, playing her first tournament as a professional. She took 75 today.

The three pros were five strokes ahead of the best of the amateurs, Don Kielty of Los Angeles and Polly Riley of Fort Worth.

They tied at 302, Miss Kielty carding 77 and Miss Riley 79 on the final round.

Miss Berg's 295 tied the figure set by Betty Jameson of San Antonid, Tex., in the 1947 Women's National Open at Greensboro, N. C. Miss Jameson won the Tampa event in 1948 but did not compete this year.

A smashing 68 on her second round was the real winner for the stocky Minneapolis golfer. It was the best round she ever shot in competition. She carded 77 the first day and 76 yesterday.

Mrs. Zaharias, who won here in 1947, started with a 78, then settled down to 76 and 71 fo rthe next two days.

Miss Suggs, second here for the past two years, had 74, 76, 72—222 tled down to 76 and 71 for the next opetning of the day's play.

The victory gave Miss Berg $900, Mrs. Zaharias $650 and Miss Suggs $500.

Marshall Says:

'None of 7 All-America Teams Will Ever Be Admitted to NFL'

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Redskin owner, George Marshall, predicts the future of pro football: "None of the seven teams now existing in the All-America Conference wil lever be taken into the National Football League unless it buys up one of the 10 franchises we now have in operation." . . . The implications are that it's a fight to the finish between the leagues after last wee's unsuccessful efforts to get together in Chicago and that Marshall is against increasing membership of the senior circuit . . . "One AAC team folded this year," Marshall said before leaving Chicago. "Things will be seven times as bad for the AAC next year."

President Robert (Jake) Embry of the AAC Baltimore Colts blames Marshall and the Mara family, owners of the New York Giants, for the breakdown in peace negotiations . . . but he has no regrets on that score, anticipating a bright future for the reorganized All-America . . . Embry slightly clarifies the "mystery of the four days," during which AAC magnates expected to make a momentous announcement at any moment with the remark: "We discussed making peace overtures and going along with an eight, seven and six team league of our own. Complications arose on every suggestion. That's why it took us so long."

One source said the real reason why there was no peace between the leagues was the legal impossibility of Cleveland and San Francisco of the AAC retaining their present players if the clubs jumped to the rival NFL. . . . Once the Browns and Forty-miners pulled out, their players would be snatched up by remaining teams in the AAC. . . . Player contracts bind them to the league as much as to each team.

The talk of San Francisco being admitted to NFL membership recalls that for two years before the AAC was organized the '49ers owner, Tony Morabito, unsuccessfully sought an NFL franchse . . .

A big step toward a solvent season will be taken by the Baltimore Colts when they move their '49 training camp from Sun Valley, Idaho, to within 40 miles of their home stadium. Pro football's first move toward peace, made in Philadelphia in December, was by "mutual agreement," it was revealed in Chicago last week . . . an A. A. C. spokesman insisted "we didn't seek contacts any more than the National League, although our delegation did attend their meeting. The whole thing was by mutual agreement" . . . This fact was verified by N. F. L. Commissioner Bert Bell.

Lions Lose Again, 4-1

Buffalo, Jan. 23.—For two and a half periods the Washington Lions gave the Buffalo Bisons a real tussle in their American Hockey League game tonight, but thereafter the weary Lions faded out, and locals carted off a 4-to-1 decision.

George Pargeter's early second period goal stood up until the 6:38 mark of the final period when Floyd Curry eased the situation for the locals with a Bison goal.

Pat Wilson got that one back in a hurry, however, on a shot that traveled 33 feet to catch the Bison cage and rob Dion of a shut out.

Alice Rickey led the winners with 15 points. In another senior girls' game Blessed Sacrament downed Nativity, 36-24.

Upward Trend

30% of National League's Games To Be Played at Night

By Jack Hand

New York, Jan. 23 (AP).—The night baseball trend continues in the National League in 1949 when approximately 30 per cent of the entire schedule will be played under the lights.

The night total of 179 games is the largest in the league's history. Last year 173 were played, including several late season contests that were rescheduled from afternoon to evening.

Brooklyn is responsible for the increase as the Dodgers, who usually restrict themselves to 14 night games, decided to make it 21. St. Louis, as usual, will be the ringleader with 43 games under the Sportsman's Park arcs.

There will be very little day ball at St. Louis. With the exception of Sundays and holidays, only 16 week-day afternoon dates will be played by the Cards at home. But the Cards have been doing that for years with great success at the gate.

The Boston Braves, rabid night-ball devotees, list 32 after dark, and the Philadelphia Phillies have 30. Pittsburgh lists 25, Brooklyn 21, and the New York Giants and Cincinnati Reds each 14.

Chicago, the lone holdout against the night invasion in the majors, continues to shun the arcs. They'll play 25 on the road.

Like the American, the National will have an early opener, April 18, when only one game will be played. On that date the champion Boston Braves will entertain the Phillies on Patriot Day in Boston.

On April 19, the regular opening schedule has Leo Durocher's New York Giants at Brooklyn, where they "ruined" the Dodgers last season; St. Louis at Cincinnati before the traditional sellout; Pittsburgh at Chicago, and the Phils at Boston for two.

St. John's Wins At Cumberland

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 23.—St. John's of Washington tenth victory in 11 games came easy here this afternoon as the Cadets trampled La Salle of Cumberland, 54-27.

Leading scorer Don Kokes continued to set the pace for St. John's as he netted 17 points. Hugh Miller, with 11 points was high man for the home team. The loss brought La Salle's record to three wins, nine defeats.

St. Louis, Akron Fall From List

By Murray Rose

New York, Jan. 23 (AP).—Examinations cut down the collegiate basketball schedule during the week, but it didn't prevent the regular guillotining of the unbeaten list. Two unbeatens went down and four are left today.

St. Louis was chopped down by Oklahoma A. and M. Thursday, 29-27, and Akron was clipped by Duquesne Monday, 63-43.

Western Kentucky (15), Minnesota (13), Hamline (13), all scored victories during the week to maintain perfect records. Villanova (11) remained in the select circle simply by not playing.

But there's trouble ahead for all except Hamline this week.

Minnesota, the Big Nine leader with a 5-0 slate following its 35-28 triumph over Indiana last night, journeys to Champaign to tackle Illinois on the Illini's home grounds. Illinois, rated seventh in the Nation to Minnesota's fourth, has a 12-1 all-game record and is 3-0 in the conference.

That shapes up as the game of the week.

Hoyas Host to Villanova

Western Kentucky, No. 3 team nationally, eased by Miami of Florida, 63-47, Saturday. This Saturday the Hilltoppers take on one of the tough teams in their own Ohio Valley Conference, Eastern Kentucky (11-3). It's a return contest, Western having edged Eastern, 56-53, in the first meeting.

Villanova, the No. 9 quintet, resumes action against Georgetown in Washington, D. C., Saturday. Hamline, rated eighth, shouldn't have any difficulty against St. Thomas of Minnesota Tuesday.

Hamline, which soared into the majors with two tournament victories, figures to go unbeaten against small time competition until February 17. That night the Pied Pipers play host to the Phillips Oilers, no less.

Here are the conference leaders:

IVY LEAGUE: League—Princeton 3-0, Yale 4-1, Columbia 2-1. All games—Columbia 5-2, Princeton 7-3.

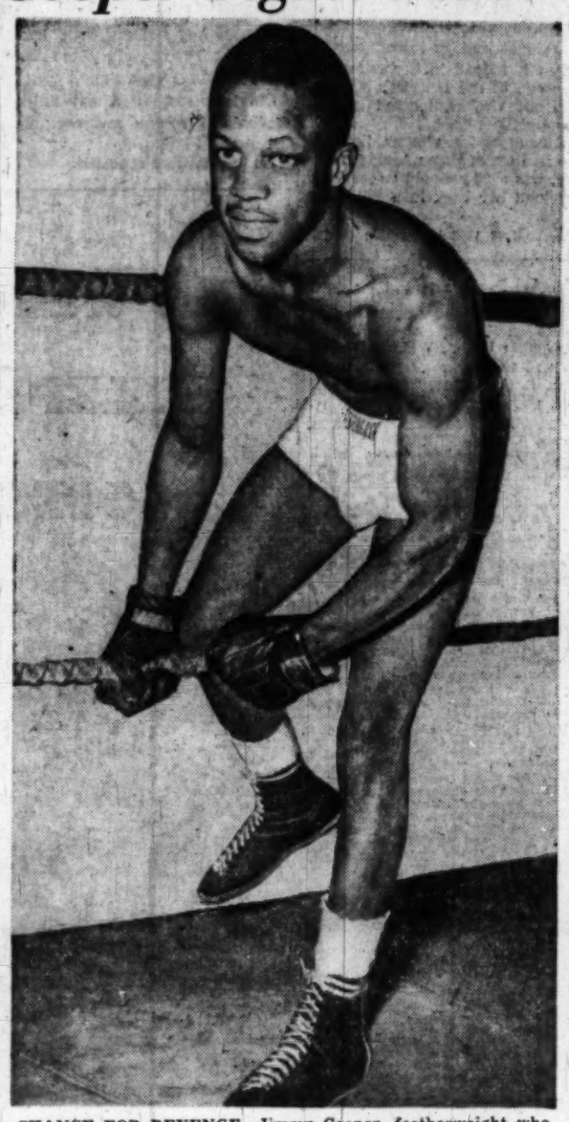
Frank Parker Wins

Stockholm, Sweden, Jan. 23 (U.P.)—Frank Parker, the Los Angeles "mechanical man," advanced to the third round of the Scandinavian lawn tennis championships today after defeating Finland's Pentti Forsman, 6—2, 6—3, 2—6, 6—1.

Cooper Fights LeBrun Tonight



CHANCE FOR REVENGE—Jimmy Cooper, featherweight who is considered one of the best fistic prospects in the District, will be shooting for revenge when he meets Leo Le Brun of Canada at Turner's Arena tonight. The Canadian recently outpointed Cooper in one of the better local fights of 1948

Jimmy Out To Avenge Loss In Turner Battle

Another step in the campaign to make Jimmy Cooper Washington's No. 1 boxing attraction takes place at Turner's Arena tonight when the local bantamweight tangles with Leo LeBrun in the featured 10-rounder.

It's an important assignment for the 19-year-old Jimmy. LeBrun, classy Canadian clouter, has beaten him once already and if he repeats tonight Cooper's chances of heading an outdoor show this summer will be reduced to practically nothing.

Last time the two met it was over an eight-round distance. LeBrun, slashing away with both hands, built up a strong margin in the early rounds, enough to earn him the unanimous decision in spite of Cooper's furious closing rush.

The contrasting styles of the contestants made for an interesting show, a power hitter, swung from everywhere but was unable to connect with any effect until the late rounds. Lebrun, meanwhile, scored repeatedly with sharp and numerous jabs and hooks.

Since their bout here—three months ago, LeBrun has confined his activities to Cuba and Puerto Rico. In Havana, Leo batled Luis Galvani, Cuba's bantam king, to a draw, and he easily defeated Tito Valdis and Jose Gracia in San Juan.

Cooper, in his last two starts, has belted out Tony Longo of Baltimore and Tim. Healy of New York.

The supporting card features the return of Don Wagner, classy heavyweight from Portsmouth, Va., who scored a one-round knockout in his previous Turner's Arena appearance. Wagner is down for a five-rounder with Freddie Thompson of Aberdeen, Md.

In other fives, Holly Mims meets Gene Holly in a middleweight scrap; Julian Keene faces Eddie Wilson, and Oscar Wakefield clashes with Johnny Holt.

Chamberlain And Central Tangle Today

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

High school basketball fans have juicy pickings on this week's fat 58-game menu.

The Interhigh League opens one of its most active weeks in recent years when Chamberlain plays at Central this afternoon.

League action reaches its peak on Tuesday with a triple-header at the National Guard Armory. In the first game, Chamberlain faces Bell. Anacostia plays Western and Roosevelt plays Coolidge to round out this unique bill.

The week's top game comes Thursday night when St. John's and Gonzaga fight it out for the Catholic League leadership at College Park.

Twin Bill at Armory

On Friday at the Armory, Phelps meets Dunbar and league-leading Armstrong tackles Cardozo. At the same time, Chamberlain is playing at Roosevelt and Bell at Wilson in Interhigh League games.

On Saturday the Interhighs return to the Armory with a double-header pitting McKinley Tech against Eastern and Western against Central.

George Washington High of Alexandria, which takes its unbeaten string of nine victories to Thomas Jefferson of Richmond on Wednesday, returns to entertain Petersburg High on Saturday night.

Cadets-Gonzaga Big Draw

The St. John's-Gonzaga collision, by iself, figures to outdraw any of the double or triple-headers. Gonzaga has won all 11 of its starts, and St. John's, playing a slightly tougher schedule, has mowed down 10 out of 11 foes. Only Calvert Hall of Baltimore has beaten the Johnnies.

Martin's Booters Tie Pan American

Capt. Max Maxwell of the British army, playing his first soccer match in 18 months, booted his second goal with 20 seconds of game time left to carry his Martin's Bakery team to a 2-2 tie with Pan-American in a Washington and Suburban Soccer League game yesterday.

Other league contests saw Sugar Radio defeat Columbia, 7-1; Marlboro shut out Rockville, 5-0; Maryland Sports Club down Glasva, 3-1; Waldorf down Washington-French, 2-0, and OSIA massacre Indian Head, 9-1.

Tucker Dunn Tops In CYO Junior Boys Basketball

Tucker Dunn stood out in yesterday's Catholic Organization Junior Boys' basketball games as he poured in 25 points to lead his St. Teresa's team to a 53-13 conquest of St. Paul's.

The victory kept St. Teresa's tied with St. Dominic's for the Section II lead. In Section I, St. Michael's defeated St. James' and took over undisputed possession of first place with three wins and no defeats. Blessed Sacrament, also boasting a 3-0 record led Section IV while St. Martin's paced Section III with 2-0.

At Botanic Garden

D. C. Urged As Capital For Orchids

The National Capital Orchid Society has come up with a capital idea: Since Washington is the Nation's Capital, why not go it one better and make it the orchid capital of the world?

Now a "matter of policy" with the society, the project calls for professional orchid growers and amateur hobbyists the country over to donate their hothouse-blooming beauties to a central collection here.

The collection would be nurtured for all to see in the appropriate atmosphere of the United States Botanic Garden.

Making the Botanic Garden the best orchid depository in the world is fine with Acting Director David Lynn, better known as the Architect of the Capitol.

Lynn welcomed the project in a letter to Eugene Griffith, outgoing president of the society. Such a collection, he wrote, "would be entirely satisfactory."

With that aspect of the plan in full flower, next move is a concerted drive to make the orchid-growing public aware of it, Griffith said yesterday. First off, he will pen an outline of the project which he hopes will be printed in the national organ of the American Orchid Society.

Then, should the response be insufficient, he said "we'll strike out at the big growers over the Nation."

Power Failure Delays Movie

A neighborhood movie theater and several hundred homes and apartments near Wisconsin ave. and Woodley rd. were without electric power from about 5:40 to 6:18 p. m. yesterday when a primary cable burned open on a pole at the southeast corner of that intersection.

Potomac Electric Power Co. dispatched a trouble crew to the scene and the cable was quickly repaired.

The power breakdown stopped the projection machine in the Calvert Theater, 2324 Wisconsin ave., and left the inside of the auditorium in darkness although the lobby light, on another circuit, remained on. The management, after checking, announced to the audience the shutdown was general in the neighborhood, and the audience patiently waited out the 38-minute delay until power returned.

'48 deaths for same period	10

A woman, who swallowed a fishbone and required an operation when it lodged in her esophagus, was one of the District's 93 home accident victims, treated in local hospitals last week.

Among 28 fall victims, listed by the Red Cross Home Accident Survey, was a 26-year-old woman who sprained her back in a fall downstairs.

Kerosene was the cause of two of the 14 burn cases treated last week. A 63-year-old woman was burned on the thigh and legs when she upset a kerosene lamp, and a 9-year-old boy suffered face, neck and arm burns when he poured too much kerosene on a fire.

Children swallowed ant-killer, ammonia, kerosene and camphor last week.

No deaths were reported.

There could be no more pleasing manner of starting a new day than to sit down to a colorfully set breakfast table . . . a table that says "Good Morning", and means it. Such a table would be set with tableware fashioned from "material of the future" . . . TUPPERWARE . . . in soft, translucent pastel tones—gracefully designed and pleasing to touch.

For, here is a new thought in tableware. Unlike other tableware that is rigid, heavy, cold to the touch, glossy and quite breakable, TUPPERWARE is flexible, featherlike in weight, warm to the touch and virtually unbreakable.

TUPPERWARE is translucent, reflecting color and light in a new and interesting manner rather than opaque like china and glass.

TUPPERWARE is easily dried when washed, because water does not adhere to it. And because it is flexible it is possible to cover serving bowls, refrigerator dishes, canisters with air and liquid-tight covers.

CAMELS for MILDNESS!

MY BRAND, TOO, WILLIE HOPPE—THE 30-DAY MILDNESS TEST WON ME OVER TO CAMELS FOR KEEPS 30 DAYS?..I'VE SMOKED CAMELS FOR 20 YEARS. I KNOW THEY'RE MILD, AND CAMELS ALWAYS TASTE GREAT!

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.

In a recent test of hundreds of people who smoked only Camels for 30 days, noted throat specialists, making weekly examinations, reported

NOT ONE SINGLE CASE OF THROAT IRRITATION due to smoking CAMELS!

LIKE Willie Hoppe, millions of smokers have been enjoying Camel mildness for years. But each week, the Camel 30-day mildness test is showing more and more smokers like Willie Mosconi how mild Camels are.

If you haven't yet discovered the cool, cool mildness and rich, full flavor of Camel's choice tobaccos . . . make the Camel mildness test in your own "T-Zone" (T for Taste and T for Throat).

According to a Nationwide survey:

MORE DOCTORS SMOKE CAMELS THAN ANY OTHER CIGARETTE

Doctors smoke for pleasure, too! And when three leading independent research organizations asked 113,597 doctors what cigarette they smoked, the brand named most was Camel.

Farewell Message Of Cancer Victim Inspires Colleagues

WILLIAM A. JUMP wrote a farewell message to his colleagues in the Agriculture Department a short time before his untimely death over the weekend from cancer. His valedictory will inspire his former coworkers with whom he has served for 42 years and everyone who is interested in the public service.

Mr. Jump entered the Department as a messenger and he developed into one of the Nation's great public servants. He was director of budget and finance when he was retired on disability several weeks ago. It isn't generally known, but he once turned down an offer to be undersecretary of his department as he preferred to remain in his Civil Service job.

These are excerpts from Mr. Jump's stimulating message of farewell:

". . . There is no finer place in America than the Department of Agriculture in which to grow up and spend a lifetime, as I have done. I feel that I have been most fortunate in having had that privilege.

"Not a week passes that I am not stimulated by some fresh evidence of the spirit of true public service that is the strong foundation of the department. Somehow, and in some way, the fact that from the beginning the department has existed for the sole purpose of making life in America a better, richer and fuller experience, has resulted in an honest, vigorous and intensely realistic public service concept on the part of the staff of the department, high and low, that is truly remarkable.

"This makes the department a most simulating and inspiring place to work. A member of the department does not have the feeling that he is just helping to turn the wheels that make a large organization work; he feels he is a partner in a great enterprise.

"This institutional appreciation is a priceless asset. It could not be created by the use of money or by any of the modern methods of building a so-called 'esprit de corps,' as important and desirable as that may be.

"I would be the first one to admit or even assert that the department is not perfect. There is no danger of this, but if it ever gets to be perfect it will become so self-centered as to be of little use as a public service institution. For many years my work has involved extensive and varied external relationships, both public and private. I have kept my eyes and ears open. The net result is that I am more deeply convinced than ever that in the USDA we have something quite unusual, whether measured by public or private standards.

"We have become so accustomed to all this that sometimes it appears that we just take it for granted. But, as everyone knows, traditions have to be kept alive and passed forward. We are not static, which I think is very good since nothing would be more objectionable than an insulated or too highly inbred bureaucracy.

"Heads of the department, bureau heads and the personnel-at-large come and go. Even bureaus come and go as the cycle of organization and reorganization keeps in motion. It is noteworthy that regardless of the scope and degree of such changes and the strain they sometimes impose, the traditions and ideals of the department are kept alive by recognition by the officers and personnel generally of these great intangibles among our institutional assets and determination and eternal vigilance to keep it so from generation to generation.

"That is why I feel compelled to mention the traditions and public service ideals of the department as one of the outstanding impressions I have at the close of a lifetime of sharing in this good and wholesome atmosphere."

Mr. Jump was a down-to-earth philosopher. He worried over the constant and repeated attacks on Federal workers during the past several years.

His farewell letter, obviously, is an attempt to offset much of the criticism, to get employes in the USDA, especially, to appreciate their opportunities and the fine organization of which they are a part, and especially important, to continue to work to uphold the public traditions of the department.

Mr. Jump's thought-provoking valedictory is a rare tribute to Agriculture employes. But today it's the employes who have their heads bowed—out of respect to the passing of their esteemed and lovable colleague.

Young Harmonica Players Featured With Symphony

AUTOGRAPH HUNTERS—Van Lier Lanning, director of the Arlington Civic Symphony, is mobbed at the end of yesterday's concert at Washington-Lee High School as appreciative youngsters swarm on the stage for his autograph—and to examine the musical instruments. The popular children's series presented school-age guest soloists for the first time

10 Pupils Take Part in Concert By Symphony

A schoolboy prank that backfired led yesterday to the first participation by children in the Arlington Civic Symphony's series of children's concerts.

Midway through yesterday's concert at Washington-Lee High School, 10 costumed fifth-graders trooped out on the stage in front of the 68 black-clad musicians and breezed through a medley of American folk songs on their harmonicas.

They were Katherine Sellers, Mary L. Davis, Nancy Cramer, Betty Kerfoot, Eleanor Jones, Dorothy Rice, Joanna Harley, Carol Deal, Barbara Hobbs and Martin LeBeau—all 10 years old and members of Mrs. Eleanor Shytle's classroom at Henry Clay Elementary School.

Yesterday's act had its start a year ago when a student brought his harmonica to school and started tooting it in class. Mrs. Shytle suggested that if he was bound to play it, he might as well get up in front of the room.

Whereupon, someone in the back of the room muttered, "Aw, play it yourself." She could, so she did. Then all the kids wanted to learn to play. The class under Mrs. Shytle's guidance has been practicing during recess time on rainy days ever since.

Yesterday's concert was the eighth pair (the one-hour concert is presented at 2 p. m., and repeated at 4 p. m.) of children's concerts since the community orchestra organized four years ago.

In the intermission between concerts, the young audience rushed the stage to pound the drums and try out the xylophone.

Adults are admitted to the children's concerts only if they are accompanied by a child. Next children's concert is March 27.

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

Polio Unit Here Spent $88,000 On Care in 1948

To care for an estimated 275 cases of infantile paralysis in 1948, the District of Columbia Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis spent more than $88,000, according to a report issued by the chapter yesterday.

The report, which includes 135 new cases of polio reported in 1948, was submitted to Edgar Morris, general chairman of the Washington March of Dimes campaign, being conducted for funds to care for polio cases in 1949.

Chairman Morris said that only sufficient contributions will insure adequate care and help for polio patients. Donations may be sent to the March of Dimes headquarters, 1350 Pennsylvania ave. nw. The drive ends January 31.

Group to Hear Budget Aide

J. Weldon Jones, assistant director of the United States Bureau of the Budget, will speak to the Montgomery County League of Women Voters at its luncheon meeting Friday noon at All Saints Episcopal Church hall, 3 Chevy Chase circle.

"Uncle Sam's Budget and Your Pocketbook" will be the title of Jones' talk, after which a film, "The Forty-Billion-Dollar Question," prepared by the National League of Women Voters, will be shown.

A preliminary discussion on problems of the Federal budget will be conducted by the Silver Spring Evening Study Group of the league Wednesday at 8:15 p. m. at Bliss Electrical School, Takoma Park. The public is invited to both meetings.

Lt. Col. Hayes Named District Engineer Aide

A former Washingtonian now serving as assistant military attache at the American Embassy in London is slated to assume the post of Assistant Engineer Commissioner here about March 1.

Colonel Hayes

He is Lieut. Col. Thomas J. Hayes, 3d, selected personally by Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young to replace Col. Kenneth E. Madsen, who soon will complete his tour of duty as an assistant Commissioner here.

The son of Maj. Gen. Thomas J. Hayes (USA, retired) of Falls Church, Colonel Hayes lived in Washington for several years while his father was stationed here and attended both Western High School and Millard Preparatory School. He graduated from West Point in 1938 and received his engineering degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology a year later.

During the war Colonel Hayes served with General Young at Fort Belvoir, Va., and also saw service on the Alcan highway and in Greenland, Alaska, Canada and the Bahamas. He has been assistant military attache at the Court of St. James's for the past three years.

Colonel Madsen has been an Assistant Engineer Commissioner here for three years, but has been inactive since last November when he underwent a serious spine operation.

Treason Charge

'Axis Sally's' Trial Begins Here Today

"Axis Sally" will go on trial for treason—a crime carrying a maximum penalty of death—at 10 a. m. today before Judge Edward M. Curran in District Court here.

The honey-voiced wartime broadcaster for the Nazis, indicted as "Mildred E. Sisk, also known as Mildred Elizabeth Gillars," will hear some of her recordings played for judge and jur. during the trial.

Miss Sisk, or Gillars, a 48-year-old native of Portland, Me., will claim she worked for this country's welfare and gave many American fathers and mothers the first word that their sons were in German prisons or hospitals, it was indicated yesterday by James J. Laughlin, her attorney.

But the Justice Department, through John M. Kelley, jr., special assistant to the Attorney General, will prosecute her on a 10-count indictment which charges she aided Hitler's government in its psychological warfare against the United States.

She used her "Home, Sweet, Home" programs, beamed to American soldiers, to "weaken the fighting powers and the morale" of our troops overseas, according to the indictment.

As in other treason trials in this country since the end of World War II, witnesses will be brought from Germany to testify for the Government, and former American GI's who were German prisoners of war also are expected to appear.

More District Handicapped Obtain Jobs

Two hundred and fourteen handicapped persons living in the District completed rehabilitation training and found self-supporting work during the last six months of 1948.

This was revealed yesterday by David Amato, chief of the D. C. service of the Federal Security Agency's office of vocational rehabilitation. The 214 persons—civilian men and women—represented a 78 per cent increase over the number aided in the same period in 1947, Amato said.

Work was found by the new rehabilitants in fields ranging from laborer to skilled specialties. Among the latter, Amato reported, are sheet metal machine operator, hand compositor, traffic rate clerk, radio announcer, television technician, barber and optometrist.

Amato noted that an increasing number of persons disabled as a result of traffic accidents is seeking the services of his office. Infantile paralysis victims also are applying in greater numbers.

Parenthood Group To Hear Mrs. Pillsbury

Mrs. Philip Pillsbury of Minneapolis, cochairman of the national fund drive of the Planned Parenthood Association of America, will address a precampaign meeting of local solicitors Tuesday at 11 a. m. at the home of Mrs. Howard Davidson, 3238 R st. nw.

During the meeting, the drive workers will receive instructions on procedure for the campaign which opens February 1. The District share of the Nation-wide one-million-dollar quota is $18,000, according to Mrs. Henry King, local chairman.

$10,000 Haul Made In Cash, Jewelry As Trio Carries Off 400-Lb. Strongbox

A retired Metropolitan Police detective sergeant was held at bay by three men early yesterday while they removed a 400-pound safe containing $10,000 in cash and jewelry from his home.

Richard H. Beckley, 69, who retired from the police force in 1920, told police he surprised the trio while they were loading the safe into an automobile when he returned to his home at 1800 New Jersey ave. nw. shortly after midnight.

Police said Beckley reported one of the men held him back with an automatic, while the other two loaded the safe in the back of the car. The trio then drove off, scraping a brick wall as they drove down the alley.

Beckley, who operates a billiard parlor at 1213 U st. nw., said the safe contained $8700 in cash, a diamond ring, a diamond pin and three watches. Police said the trio entered Beckley's home by forcing the basement door, disconnected a burglar alarm by pulling down the light switch and carried the safe from a third floor to the basement and then out to the car.

The safe in the Arthur Murray Dance Studios, 1106 Connecticut ave. nw., was forced open sometime early yesterday and between $400 and $500 was stolen, police reported. Entrance was gained by jimmying the door on the third floor. The entire place was ransacked, police said.

Yoke, Purse Thefts Lead 'Epidemic'

An unusually heavy run of pocketbook snatchings and holdups was reported in the District over the weekend.

Robbery squad detectives said they could find no apparent cause for the sudden epidemic of crime. Description of the thieves and robbers differed greatly in each case, they said. Cases reported included:

Joseph Jones, 30, of 917½ Barry pl. nw., told police $15 in cash was snatched from his hand as he was walking in the 700 block of Florida ave. nw. about 7 p. m. Saturday. Police are holding an 11-year-old boy, who was picked up near the scene, in connection with the case.

Irma Ellett, 48, of the Nurses Home, Homeopathic Hospital, 2d and N sts. nw., reported her pocketbook, containing 50 cents and personal papers, was snatched by a 19-year-old youth while she was walking in front of the hospital about 8:30 p. m.

Yoked and Robbed

At 9 p. m. Celestine Bryant of 938 O st. nw. was yoked and robbed of $3 in cash by two men as he walked in the 1100 block of 8th st. nw., police said. He described the two men as Negroes, one wearing an Army jacket and the other a blue jacket and chauffeur's cap.

Christie Winnen of 2623 13th st. nw. reported her pocketbook, containing $23 in cash and personal papers, was snatched while she was walking near 16th st. and Spring rd. nw. about 9:30 p. m. The thief was a Negro, about 29 years old and wearing dark clothes, she said.

At 10 p. m. Marguerite E. Greene, 24, of 1005 Girard st. nw. lost her pocketbook, containing personal papers, to a purse-snatcher while walking in the 500 block of Irving st. nw., police said. She described the thief as a short Negro, wearing a light gray topcoat.

Robbed of Billfold

Also at 10 p. m. Elmer L. King, 35, of 909 10th st. se., was robbed of his billfold containing $8, while walking in the 900 block of K st. se., police said. King told police two youths approached him from the back, pressed a hard object into his back and threatened to "blast him" if he made a move. A short while after receiving the report, police arrested a 16-year-old boy in connection with the case. He was identified as one of the pair by King, they said.

A pocketbook, contained $12 in cash, was snatched from Vera L. Poston, 38, of 1764 Corcoran st. nw., as she was walking near her home about 4:30 a. m. The thief was a Negro, and about 20 years old, wearing a shabby grey coat and brown trousers, she told police.

New Tumor Clinic To Open Today

Garfield Hospital's new tumor clinic, under the direction of Dr. Ralph M. Caulk, attending radiologist at the hospital, will open today.

The tumor clinic, which is to share space and facilities with the Cancer Detection Center, also directed by Dr. Caulk, will be open Mondays and Thursdays from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. Its purpose is to determine whether an abnormal growth is of a malignant or benign nature.

2 Dead, 7 Injured In Auto-Truck Crashes in Area

20 Others Not Held

39 Forfeit $25 Each in Gaming Raid

Thirty-nine persons were arrested early yesterday in a vice squad raid on a dice game in a second-floor restaurant at 746 9th st. nw.

Police said Lieut. Roy Blick and Detective Sergt. Howard Ogle, who made the raid, picked up a set of dice, a blackjack and $65 in cash, which was scattered over the floor when a table was overturned as they entered. Eleven uniformed police were then called in to assist in the arrests.

The 39 men were charged with disorderly conduct. Each elected to forfeit $25 collateral at police headquarters.

Approximately 20 other persons in the restaurant at the time of the raid were released without being charged, police said.

Fire in Home, Father Misses Baby's Birth

The final hours of expectant fatherhood can be pretty rough when a fellow learns his house is burning at the same time.

That's the way it was with John Canney of Vienna, Va. He took his wife to Gallinger Hospital Saturday evening. While he was waiting, he got a call telling him his house was on fire. He tore home, and the baby was born while he watched the second floor of his two-story frame house burn.

Firemen said the blaze apparently was caused by a faulty chimney. When they arrived the fire already had burned a hole through the roof. Damage was estimated at $5000.

At the hospital, meanwhile, Mrs. Canney and son were reported doing fine.

Mother of 4 Burned In Takoma Park Fire

A 43-year-old mother of four children suffered first and second degree burns on her head and arms in a fire last night that also suffocated a dog.

Firemen said the blaze apparently started in the furnace room of 6637 Eastern ave., Takoma Park, where a wooden basket was ignited by hot ashes from the furnace. Damage was estimated at $3100.

Mrs. Cecilia Bennett, with her husband, Bernard, 43, and their four children occupied the basement apartment, firemen said.

The Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department got the blaze under control three hours after it was discovered at 8:30 p. m. Mrs. Bennett was admitted to the Washington Sanitarium for treatment. Police said the dog was owned by another resident of the premises, Joseph B. Beam.

Grocery Thief Caught by Police After Foot Chase

An agile policeman, who happened to be in a Safeway store at 1509 U st. nw. Saturday when a customer tried to escape with $21 worth of groceries, caught the man nearby after a brief chase on foot, police reported yesterday.

Pvt. Thomas E. Williams of the Thirteenth Precinct, was talking to Manager Aubrey Herndon in the rear of the store when he heard a clerk in front shout that a customer had fled with the groceries, he said.

Williams gave chase and arrested Thomas Fortune, 24, of 5117 Grant st. ne., nearby. Fortune, who carried a bag, containing a fresh ham, 5 links of sausage, 4 chickens, a porterhouse steak, two small hams, six pork chops and a package of cheese, taken from the store, was charged with petit larceny.

Man Robbed, Beaten Near District Line

Two thugs severely beat, kicked and robbed a man as he waited for a bus at 11 a. m. yesterday on Wisconsin ave. in Chevy Chase near the District line.

The victim, Robert J. Reed, 33, a coal miner of Spangler, Pa., was in a serious condition last night with a possible skull fracture and severe cuts and bruises of the face and head, while two men suspects were being held for investigation by the Montgomery County police at Bethesda.

Found unconscious by a passing motorist who called police, Reed was only able to tell them that he was robbed of $24 and his watch by a tall man and a short man as he waited for a bus to return to his Pennsylvania home after a visit here. One suspect was picked up near the scene shortly afterward, and the other was arrested at his home some hours later, police said.

Silver Spring Woman Crushed in Wreck; Man Killed Instantly South of Alexandria

A Silver Spring woman was killed in an automobile accident there yesterday and an Arlington man died in a collision near Alexandria, in which six others were injured.

Mrs. Josie Vere Rider, 59, a cosmetic counsellor, of 1611 Dennis ave., Silver Spring, was crushed in the wreckage of her car when, Montgomery County police say, she drove through a stop sign into the path of a three-ton milk truck at 9:30 a. m. The accident happened at Georgia and Dennis aves., Silver Spring.

G. E. Wood Mrs. Rider

Police said Mrs. Rider's daughter, Miss Marian Rider, 26, employed by the United States Public Health Service in Washington, a passenger in the car, told them her mother had tried to stop as she approached Georgia ave. on Dennis ave., but apparently the brakes of the old car jammed.

Died In Hospital

Mrs. Rider died in Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, Md., at 11:20 a. m. Her daughter was admitted there with concussion, shock, cuts and bruises.

The truck is owned by W. Lawson King, of Gaithersburg, and was driven, police said, by LeRoy H. Fink, 31, of Diamond ave., Gaithersburg. County Police Pvts. Jessie Crown and Palmer Hurd held Fink on a technical charge of manslaughter. He was later released on his personal bond for a hearing February 15 in Silver Spring Police Court.

Mrs. Rider was on her way to the Columbia Heights Christian Church, 1435 Park rd. nw., where she was an active worker. A foster-son, Chester Jones, a Federal Bureau of Investigation agent at Wheeling, W. Va., was notified and arrived here last night. The Riders came to Washington from Philadelphia in 1944, and bought the Silver Spring house last May. They had lived earlier in Kansas City, when Jones was stationed there.

The other accident victim, George E. Wood, 24, of 435 N. Columbus st., Arlington, Va., was killed instantly at 1:25 a. m. on U. S. Highway No. 1, 3 miles south of Alexandria. Virginia State Police said he made a U-turn at the foot of Snake Hill and was rammed by a tractor-trailer truck driven by Thomas L. Gaillard of Atlanta, Ga.

Six passengers in Wood's car were listed at Alexandria Hospital as: Edith Cope, 19, Wagar Apartments, 121 Fairfax st., Alexandria, broken elbow, face and head cuts; Florence Fox, 24, RFD 5, Alexandria, broken ankle; Hazel Simpson, 19, of 312 St. Asaph st., Alexandria, knee cuts; Oscar Saunders, 22, of 425 Cameron st., Alexandria, face cuts; Yates Ledbetter, 22, same address, head cuts, and Roger Thompson, 33, same address, chin cut.

The truck driver was unhurt. Technically charged with manslaughter, he was released for appearance in Fairfax Trial Justice Court February 11.

Coroner A. Magruder McDonald will hold an inquest at 11:30 a. m. today in the death of Lillie Mae Butler, 25, of 432 New York ave. nw. Police reported Miss Butler was killed at 1:40 a. m. Saturday when hit by an automobile driven by Benjamin S. Hall, jr., 36, of 1614 Carrollburg pl. sw., as she was crossing M st. sw. at Howison pl.

Joe L. Blythe, Democrat Aide, Dies

Joe L. Blythe, 58, of Charlotte, N. C., treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, died unexpectedly about 9 a. m. Sunday in his suite at the Mayflower Hotel.

Death was attributed to a cerebral hemorrhage.

He was stricken as he was preparing to leave for Charlotte with his wife, Mrs. Cherrye High Blythe; their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Richardson of Charlotte, and chauffeur. They had come to Washington a week ago to attend President Truman's inauguration.

The family said the strain of the inaugural week had apparently worsened a blood pressure condition.

Mr. Blythe, a North Carolina State senator, had been mentioned as a possible candidate for Governor. His death ended a long career in politics in the Tar Heel State.

President Truman said in a letter to Mrs. Blythe that he was "shocked and saddened."

Mr. Truman called him "a sterling citizen, upright, honest and honorable."

At a luncheon last week for the party's finance committee, President Truman was heard to tell him:

"Thank you, Joe, for a job well done."

As treasurer, Mr. Blythe served during the height of the Southern revolt against Mr. Truman's civil rights program. He is credited with having had a large part in keeping North Carolina "in line" for President Truman during the States' rights "revolt."

A State senator from his native Mecklenburg County, he had attended a State Senate session before coming to Washington. In 1947 he had served as president pro tempore of the North Carolina Senate.

Mr. Blythe was vice president of Blythe Brothers Co., general contractors, which he and his brother, Jack, developed from a small firm into one of the largest in the South. He also was a vice president of the Concrete Supply Co., the Piedmont Mop Co., the Charlotte Equipment Co., and president of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Blythe; four children, Mrs. Richardson, Joe L. Blythe, jr., and Sam Blythe, both students at the University of North Carolina, and Miss Jane Blythe, a student at Holton Arms, in Washington, D. C. Also surviving are a brother and three sisters: Miss Sarah Lecke Blythe, Mrs. Flynn Wolf, both of Charlotte, and Mrs. B. W. Ingram, Wadesboro, N. C.; and two grandchildren, Ricky and David Richardson.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the First Associated Reformed Presbyterian Church in Charlotte.

W. R. Dorsey, Lifelong D. C. Resident, Dies

Walter Robert Dorsey, one-time secretary of the Mixed Claims Commission, which handled settlement of World War I claims between this country and Germany, died yesterday afternoon at Emergency Hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Dorsey

A direct descendant of Col. Edward Dorsey, one of the founders of Maryland and a son of the late Worthington Dorsey of Howard County, Md. Mr. Dorsey was a lifelong resident of the District. He was educated in the public schools here and started his business career as a partner of Hunter Galt, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, in a court reporting firm.

He married Miss Cora Chapman, a daughter of the late Nathanial Chapman, who occupied historic Glymont, near Indian Head, Md., which was a direct grant to the Chapman family from King George III.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a brother, William H. Dorsey, and three grandchildren, all the children of his daughter, the late Mrs. Virginia Worthington Herbert.

Funeral services will be held at the family residence, 2325 Ashmead pl. nw., Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Clarence S. Jones

Mrs. Clarence S. Jones, 58, of 640 Franklin st. ne., a resident of Washington for 30 years, died Saturday night at her home as a result of a stroke suffered Wednesday.

Besides her husband, a bus operator for the Capital Transit Co., she is survived by six children, Sergt. Clarence S. Jones, jr., USA, stationed at Fort Myer, Va.; John William Jones, 3913 S st. se.; Mrs. Helen Drummond, 106 Ridge rd. se.; Mrs. Dorothy Fetner, 3070 Thayer st. ne.; Mrs. Anna Fanning, 2 Forrester st. se., and Miss Evelyn Jones of the Franklin st. address. She also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Gertrude O'Brien, Washington, Mrs. Annetta Stone, Glendale, Calif., and a brother, Roy Offutt, Washington.

A requiem mass will be said Tuesday at 9:30 a. m. at St. Anthony's Church, 12th and Monroe sts. ne. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery, Rockville, Md.

Henrietta A. Mirick

Henrietta A. Mirick, 81, retired school teacher and author of several children's books, died yesterday at her home, 321 E st. se., where she lived with her lifelong friend, Miss Margaret E. Carpenter.

Miss Mirick was born in Gilbertsville, N. Y., and was graduated from Wellesley College in the class of 1892. She spent most of her life in educational and related fields, teaching school at Gilbertsville and Sidney, N. Y. From 1915 to 1921 she taught school in Fairbanks, Alaska.

She is survived by two sisters, Miss Ida L. Mirick and Miss Mary H. Mirick, both of Gilbertsville.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Robert Lee Taylor

Robert Lee Taylor, 43, 3221 Connecticut ave. nw., GI air conditioning and refrigeration student, died early yesterday at Bethesda Naval Hospital after an illness of about six months.

A native of Nashville, Tenn., Mr. Taylor had lived in Washington since 1944, when he began his studies under the GI bill after being discharged from the Marine Corps. Before entering service in 1942, he was sales manager for a dry cleaning establishment in Tennessee.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Helen Boone Taylor; two stepchildren, Margie Jane and Richard Boone, and a brother, Elmer D. Taylor of Nashville.

Graveside funeral services will be held at Arlington Cemetery Wednesday at 1 p. m.

Miss Margaret Ware

Miss Margaret Ware, 86, a dressmaker for Mount Vernon Seminary in the early 1900's, died Saturday in a Washington hospital of pneumonia. She was stricken about a month ago.

Miss Ware, a native of Starkville, Miss., came to Washington in 1901 and worked for a time for the Mount Vernon Seminary. She was a member of the Central Presbyterian Church here.

Her sister, Miss Jack Ware, with whom she lived at 950 25th st. nw., is her only survivor.

Services will be held at Chambers funeral home, 3072 M st. nw., at 2 p. m. on Tuesday. Burial will be in National Memorial Park Cemetery, Falls Church, Va.

By Eating Protective Foods

Wonder Diet Helps You to Stay Young

By Ida Jean Kain

THE Scientific Wonder Diet is made up exclusively of keeping-young calories, and fast-burning calories that let the dieter lose 1½ to 3 pounds a week . . . eating to reduce. Who could ask for more?

First on the keeping-young score . . . science promises that optimum amounts of the protective foods in daily menus can add 10 years to the best years of our lives. They term it "extending the prime of life," but that is synonymous with staying younger longer.

How can protective foods work such wonders? They furnish materials to repair worn-out tissues, build red blood cells, act as buffer to the nervous system, liberate energy and keep everything running smoothly. With enough protective material we live more years on a high level of health.

But excess weight is ageing, so our diet includes optimum amounts of the protective foods on limited calories, and in that way stored fat is steadily drawn on for part of the energy needs.

On the fast-burning score, calories from some foods are actually not as fattening as calories from others. It is a scientific fact that protein, besides furnishing needed repair material, whips up the system to burn more calories. Skeptical? Protein calories are more dynamic. It takes energy, therefore calories, to digest food. When 100 calories of fat are eaten, 4.1 are required to cover the cost of digestion. With carbohydrates, it takes 6 calories to cover the cost of digesting 100 calories. But with protein, the cost is much greater, and the rise in metabolism amounts to 30 or 40 calories! So, you can lose weight faster on an 1100-calorie diet that is high in protein, than you can on the same number of calories but with more fat and carbohydrate and less protein.

IDA JEAN KAIN

The Wonder Diet includes a small amount of carbohydrate, in bread, potatoes and fruits, for a definite reason. When a small amount of carbohydrate is included in a low-calorie diet, the tissue burned is largely fatty tissue —that's exactly what is wanted. Of course, too much carbohydrate adds too many calories . . . and turns a reducing diet into a gaining regime.

These menus are planned so that every food included furnishes its full share of protection. They are also planned for good eating on limited calories. The calories in the salad dressing are cut in half, and all the dietary tricks are used to keep you happy while slimming . . . it's magic.

The Scientific Wonder Diet provides perfect nutrition. I'm really not blowing my own horn—credit is due the science of nutrition for making it possible to work out a diet that provides all the nutrients liberally, yet on limited calories which forces the body to burn its fatty tissue.

If you want the diet, send for SCIENTIFIC WONDER DIET, inclosing a long, stamped, addressed envelope with your request, to Ida Jean Kain, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

Visitors Entertained At Round of Parties

By Marie McNair

A personal invitation from President and Mrs. Truman to the Inauguration brought Admiral and Mrs. Philip Eaton back to Washington.

An invitation from Mrs. Emerson Howe to be her guests at tea yesterday, gave them reason to stay on.

In the rain with Mrs. Howe's pleasant apartment their first objective, guests made the round to Col. Frederick Jones-Davies' and Dr. D. W. Honeywell's joint cocktail party, then on to Mr. and Mrs. Edward I. Williams' Georgetown house for cocktails in honor of Mrs. Williams' father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. James H. R. Cromwell.

Wears Black Velvet

Upstairs, Admiral Eaton, and Mrs. Eaton in a long black velvet gown sprinkled with gold sequins in leaf design, were renewing old friendships, for they, like their hostess, are a part of "old Washington." Since giving up Comynholm, their Washington house, they've built another with the same name at Watch Hill, R. I., where they now spend most of their time.

Mrs. Harold Walker, who had turned over her S st. house to Colonel Jones-Davies and Dr. Honeywell for their party in honor of Sir Roland and Lady Braddell, was at Mrs. Howe's tea table serving coffee. Also taking their turn pouring tea and coffee were Mrs. Owen Brewster, Mrs. Stanley Hornbeck, in black and without a hat; Mrs. Curtis Shears wearing ermine tails on her hat and carrying a tiny ermine tail muff; Mrs. Owen Brewster, Mrs. Ralph Church, Mrs. William S. Culbertson, Mrs. Peyton Gordon and Mrs. George Thorpe.

Neighbors There

Mrs. William E. Borah, Mr. and Mrs. William Escavaille, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Price, Mr. and Mrs. James Souby, apartment neighbors of Mrs. Howe, were all there yesterday and I met Mrs. Frederick Coleman, Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, Mrs. George Barnett and Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner, who also lives in the same building.

Mrs. Effingham Townsend told me her son-in-law and daughter, Gould and Peggy Shaw, have bought a house in Florida's Cocoanut Grove, "not too large, but with room for a guest or two."

Mr. and Mme. Chautemps, were in the groups and others were Mrs. Mason Gulick, Miss Mary Howry, Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould, Mme. Prochnik wearing a stiff black taffetá frock barred in gold; Mrs. Alec Legare, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Holdrege and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Graves.

Sir Ronald Braddell, tall, gray and straight, and Lady Braddell whose pleasant face is framed with light brown hair, are on holiday in this country for several months, will be in Washington only until Wednesday.

Colonel Jones-Davies and Dr. Honeywell knew them back in England, were delighted to learn they were to include Washington in their tour.

I saw the Philippine Ambassador, Joaquin Elizalde, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Freer, Alice Freer looking very lovely in a black frock with a cuff collar of pale blue satin embroidered in jet beads, the blue exactly matching her eyes. In the same group were Roy St. Lewis, without his Peggy, who's at home with a cold, escorting Mrs. Mabel Kennedy, here from Oklahoma for inauguration week and staying over because she likes it. A Democratic National Committeewoman from her State, Mrs. Kennedy is also president of a bank, the mother of five children now all grown, has a sense of humor and a Western charm.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cafritz stopped in on their way to see their old friend, Jimmie Cromwell, and also there were the Siamese Ambassador, Prince Wan; Gen. and Mrs. Gordon Young, Donald Downs, Blake Clark and Mrs. Clark with red poppies in her shining black hair; Mrs. John Paterson, Miss Anne Mitchell, Mrs. Randall Hagner who chatted with Mrs. Lee Murphy, Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard looking glamorous in a mantilla headdress.

The Agricultural Attache of the Spanish Embassy and Senora de Echegaray were there and coming in out of the rain were Royce Powell and Mrs. Powell who carried a doll size red unbrella not much bigger than a penny.

TOWN TOPICS:

The Cuban Ambassador, young Guillermo de Belt, has a fortnight to give his answer whether he'll accept the post as Ambassador in London.

There are those who say he won't go, that he'll return to Havana to practice law.

At the reception at the Cuban Embassy on Saturday, there were many tear-filled eyes as friends were saying goodby, and "Cuca" le Belt slyly wiped her eyes when Mme. Julia, wife of the Finnish Minister put her motherly arms about her.

The party in honor of the Leslie Biffles was also the Belts' au revoir. The drawing room suite of the embassy was just comfortably filled and after the inauguration crowds everybody heaved a sigh of relief.

Among those there were the Nicaraguan Ambassador, Guillermo Sevilla-Sacasa; the Italian Ambassador and Signora Tarchiani, the Chinese Ambassador and Mme. Koo, Vice President Alben Barkley and Mrs. George Mesta, the Undersecretary of the Treasury, Edward H. Foley, jr.; the Luxembourg Minister and Mme. LeGallais, and Gonzalo Guell, new Cuban Ambassador to the Pan American Union, who denies he'll be Guillermo Belt's successor.

Bullitt Attends

William Bullitt, who rarely goes to afternoon parties, was there, so was Mrs. Ray Atherton, whose husband is former Ambassador to Canada; Mr. and Mrs. Sherlock Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dewey, Mrs. Mitchell Palmer wearing a tower of pink roses for a hat.

Some of Les Biffle's pals from "the Hill" with their wives were Senator Millard Tydings, Claude Pepper, Leverett Saltonstall, Mike Monroney, with Mrs. Monroney a symphony in beige and brown.

The New Zealand Ambassador and Lady Berendsen had with them their son, Keith Berendsen, and his pretty wife, newly arrived from New Zealand, where Keith had just finished his medical course.

Others there were Justice and Mrs. Stanley Reed, William D. Pawley and Mrs. Pawley, Gen. and Mrs. Wade Haislip, Gen. and Mrs. A. C. Wedemeyer, Gen. and Mrs. Gordon Young, the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Charles Brannan, Justice and Mrs. Harold Burton, the Paul Daniels, the Turkish Ambassador and Mme. Erkin, Mrs. Harry Andrews, wife of the South African Ambassador; William Jenkins, Miss Anne Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Constantine de Stackelberg and Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas.

—Zweig.

Mrs. Richard M. Curtin, jr. was Miss Dolores F. Crouch before her marriage Saturday afternoon at Holy Trinity Church. She is the daughter of Mrs. Alma Crouch of Washington. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Curtin, also of this city. The Rev. Hugh M. McCarron performed the ceremony and Leo Plunkett gave the bride in marriage. She wore white satin and lace and carried white roses and sweet peas

Mary Haworth's Mail

School Teacher, Married 18 Years, Ponders Thought of Divorcing His Wife, Who Dwells On His Faults, Though He Strives to Please

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Peg and I have been married for 18 years. We were very happy for a short time, but we have never had much in common. I like to be with people; she does not. In fact, she seems indifferent to my company, too.

I make an average salary and we bought a nice home some years ago, but Peg isn't satisfied with what we have. Neither am I, but I do the best I can on a teacher's pay; and my greatest longing is for the love and companionship which make a happy home life.

Peg is always nagging about what she doesn't have, but when I give her money to get them she refuses, and when I offer to share our paycheck she doesn't approve that, either. She nags me for smoking, saying we could use that money for other things, and wants me to account for every penny I spend.

Man Has Never Carped at Wife

SHE NAGS about the way I eat, what I eat; in fact, about everything I do, and is always pointing out my faults. I know I have faults, but I may truthfully say I have never criticized her faults, and I try to be a good husband, thoughtful and kind, helping with the housework and doing nice things to please her,—but she never shows any appreciation.

I don't drink, I stay home and try to live as people should; and I finally told her I wouldn't stand for any more nagging, but that hasn't changed her and now I am at a loss to know what to do next.

I may be wrong, but I believe I could amount to much more if I had an understanding wife who cared for me. Peg says she proves her devotion by cooking my meals and doing the housework. I have thought of divorce and wonder if it is the only solution. Please advise me. E. G.

Not the Type to Revolt Outright

DEAR E. G.: The gist of your life with Peg adds up to a classic picture of henpecked husband, and, inasmuch as a henpecked man suffers that affliction due as much to his passive dependent character as to his wife's shortcomings, I think it highly improbable that you will ever take action to divorce Peg.

Thus it seems a waste of time to pursue that idea, either in our exchange or in your own mind. It were more to the point to plan defensive action better suited to your particular temperament; and all things considered, I believe you should take your cue from the proverb that says: "What can't be cured must be endured."

To endure, says Webster's, is to remain firm; so I am not advocating meek martyred compliance with Peg's nagging, but rather the development of a tough-minded stoic indifference to her ill humors. You should educate and discipline yourself to keep a firm footing when she starts sniping, instead of running in circles, mentally and physically, trying to disarm her attacks.

Don't Be Defensive; Muster Indifference

TO ESTABLISH that footing, you've got to take yourself off the defensive about her carping discontent. It is important to realize, without embarrassment, that you cannot please her, and that the harder you try, the less thanks you get, in addition to wasting your energies and falling on your face in a futile enterprise.

Either her ill humors are indigenous to her constitution, a by-product of neurotic maladjustment to life, dating back to childhood history that you didn't shape; or she has hit upon complaints as a string-pulling way of keeping you on the jump, straining your utmost to make her life easier.

In any case, her grumbling cannot be taken seriously as a reproach to your conscience, and since you aren't the type to revolt outright, it seems high time to ignore her aspersions with stoic composure,—a subtle rejection of petticoat rule, incidentally. If quietly adopted without confab, this policy might restore balance to the relationship, because if Peg feels herself slipping inexplicably she may start courting your favor instinctively. M. H.

THEY'LL come back for more when you serve this tasty dessert. Almonds, good in almost any dish, are sprinkled over the creamy chocolate icing

Whipped Cream Cake Dessert

Whipped cream, combined with tender chocolate cake, makes this simple but luscious dessert. A sprinkling of toasted almonds on top gives it the final mouth-watering touch.

Whipped Cream Roll

- 4 egg whites
- 4 egg yolks
- 4 tablespoons finely granulated sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 4 tablespoons sifted cake flour
- 4 tablespoons cocoa
- ½ teaspoon baking powder
- ½ pint heavy cream
- 4 tablespoons powdered sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ¼ cup slivered toasted almonds

Beat egg whites until stiff enough to stand up in peaks. With the same beater, beat the egg yolks and sugar together for 3 minutes, or until very light and fluffy. Add vanilla. Mix flour, cocoa, and baking powder and sift three times. Stir flour mixture into yolks and when mixed, fold in the egg whites until they have entirely disappeared. Pour into a buttered shallow cake pan, about 14x9 inches. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for 10 minutes or until firm to the touch and shrunken away from the sides of the pan. Remove from the oven and invert the pan. Let stand until cake is cold. Loosen it with a spatula from the sides and bottom of the pan (it will be quite limp and will loosen readily) and place upside down on a sheet of waxed paper.

Whip the cream until stiff enough to hold its shape. Fold in the sugar and vanilla. Spread over cake, roll up along the side, like a jelly roll. Place on a plate with the seam side down. Pour chocolate sauce over the top and sprinkle with slivered almonds.

Chocolate Sauce

- 2 squares unsweetened chocolate
- ¾ cup hot water
- ¾ cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon light corn syrup
- 2 teaspoons butter
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Few grains salt

Melt the chocolate over boiling water. Mix sugar and cornstarch, add hot water, and stir into melted chocolate. Add corn syrup and boil for 5 minutes. Add butter, vanilla, and salt, and cool before using.

First Lady's Hat Is 'One World' Creation

By Hal Boyle

New York (AP).—Women's hats don't just happen. They are made to happen.

And there is quite a story behind the first hat of the land today—the hat that America's First Lady wore after husband Harry's swearing-in ceremony.

Bess Truman's inaugural reception hat proves we do live in one world. It is a kind of United Nations hat—welding together the artistic talents of arid Africa, Italy, France and Hungary. The price—undisclosed—is strictly American.

"There is only one hat of this kind in the world—and there will never be another," said Suzanne Remy, petite French designer.

"And it will be worn just once. After that it will be put in the Smithsonian Institution, where they also have a hat worn by Martha Washington.

The Smithsonian also recently acquired the first airplane flown by the Wright brothers.

Africa's contribution came from an anonymous ostrich, which donated 10 tail plumes. An elderly Italian, the only man left in New York who can do this sort of work, then spent two weeks laboriously tearing the feathers apart and gluing them back together in the pattern Mlle. Remy designed.

He had to try 25 separate dyes before he could achieve the five shades of mauve the hat required to go with Mrs. Truman's gray dress. The hat was then shaped and completed by Mlle. Remy's Hungarian assistant, Nanouchka.

"It is really an international hat," said the designer, a pretty blue-eyed blonde of 28. "Mrs. Truman had two fittings. She said 'the boss' had seen it and liked it."

What else could a diplomatic husband—even the President of the United States—say?

The mauve ostrich feather creation was one of three hats Mlle. Remy designed for Mrs. Truman to wear during inaugural ceremonies. Daughter Margaret took one—a red hat with a big side bow.

"Margaret doesn't care much about hats," said Mlle. Remy. "She has such beautiful hair—she doesn't really need to wear a hat often. She tried on about 75 before she picked the one with the red bow."

Mrs. Truman was quick and decisive in her choices.

"She knows exactly what she wants," said the little milliner. "I wish more of my customers were like her."

Designing the inauguration hats capped a pleasant success story for Mlle. Remy herself.

"I came here from Paris in 1941 with only $200 and some materials," she recalled.

"When I was down to my last 20 cents I had to do something. So I called up my friends and began designing their hats.

"I worked all alone in a basement. It was the happiest time of my life. Now I have the reputation of making the most expensive hats in New York. But I wish I was back in my basement. All I really want to do is sit alone in a locked room and design hats.

"I will never give up hats. They are my life. But I don't care about selling my hats. I am a poor business woman."

She seems to be alone in this opinion. Among her customers are such well-known bargain hunters as Sonia Henie, Barbara Hutton, Hildegarde, Gene Tierney and Mrs. Harrison Williams.

Ask Anne — About Knitting Argyle Sock Toe

Is it possible, after turning the heel of a sock to knit to where the toe shaping begins on a round needle? I am knitting argyles, so of course, the top was knitted on two needles. H. E. D.

Yes, there is a 5-inch circular needle which can be successfully used for knitting socks.

I have some records that have not been used much but have got dirty. Is there any way to clean them to sound good again? A Reader

Use a record brush, which can be purchased where records are sold, to clean them. Record dealers also have special fluids for cleaning the discs more thoroughly.

I discovered a dark yellow spot on a real lace, ecru collar, the kind that appears on linens which have not been used for long. Is there some way of treating just that spot? M. D.

You could dampen the spot with warm water and sprinkle sodium perborate on it. This is a very mild bleanch which is safe to use on all fabrics. Let it stand for 30 minutes and rinse thoroughly. If the spot is lightened, but not entirely removed, repeat.

We have just received a crib from another member of our family. It is complete except for the metal rods which allow the movable side to be raised and lowered. We would appreciate information as to where these may be obtained, either new or second-hand. C. L. V.

You may be able to get the part by writing directly to the manufacturer. If you do not know the manufacturer's name, look on the under parts for a trade name. When you get that, the nursery furniture department of a furniture store will probably be able to supply you with the manufacturer's address. Another way to get the manufacturer's name is to get it from new crib which is like the one you have in a furniture store.

Our car was in an automobile accident and there was some bloodstains on the seats. The seats are covered with a velour material something like broadcloth. The garage people, in attempting to remove the bloodstains, used carbon tetrachloride and also a bleach. As a result of this, the car has a very objectionable odor. We have tried rubbing a deodorant over the seats and have even dumped some of the deodorant onto the seats. We still have the odor, it may be lessened in intensity somewhat, but it still is very objectionable. Is there anything we can do to deodorize the car? F. C. R.

Liquid moth-proofing sprays also deodorize, so spraying the upholstery with that might help. Also, you could dust the upholstery with a good deodorant powder, let it stand for 30 minutes or so and remove the powder with the brush attachment of the vacum cleaner. If the odor has not completely disappeared with one treatment, repeat. If one or both of these treatments does not remove the odor, having the upholstery thoroughly cleaned is the remaining solution.

What can I do to restore the brightness of a new aluminum saucepan which became discolored after boiling some glasses (gold rimmed) in it? Neither steel wool nor boiling water with a cup of vinegar added had any effect on the discoloration. D. Y.

Try boiling 2 teaspoons of cream of tartar to each quart of water in the saucepan.

The number is ALexandria 0649.

Could you tell me if there is any way to dye or tint a plastic shower curtain and window curtain. I paid $15 for the set and, much to my sorrow, it has faded at the top. M. L. R.

I'm sorry, I know of no way to change the color of plastic curtains.

The following information may help W. M. O. in locating her friend in Portland, Ore.: Everyone in Portland reads a column "Mr. Fixit" in the Oregon Journal, and many old friends are found through this column. The column is edited by an elderly lady who is quite sympathetic to requests for contact with missing persons. A. G. D.

Several weeks ago, someone requested information on the art of "decoupage." If she will get the American Home Magazine for January 1949, she will find an article telling of the origin and different types of decoupage. S. P.

There appeared in your column recently a request for information regarding decoupage work. If the party with the initials C. W. E. will get in touch with me at Falls Church 3394, I will be glad to give her the information I have and to help her. M. H. S.

Inquiries and contributions to the "Ask Anne" column must be in written form. We regret that time does not permit handling them by telephone. Address letters or cards to Anne, Room 403, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

Miss Sheila Stone Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Russell J. Stone of this city have announced the engagement of their daughter, Sheila Arlen, to Lieut. Alfred Benedict Ellis, USN, son of the late Jesse James Ellis of Cutte, Nebr. June 18 has been chosen as the date of the wedding.

Miss Helen Dorothy Brewer, whose marriage to Ensign Richard H. Spring will take place next month, was honored at a surprise miscellaneous shower on Friday evening, January 14. Miss Alice Brumback and Miss Jane Sears were hostesses, the party being given at Miss Sears' home at Weems Creek.

Of great interest to Annapolis society is the engagement of Miss Jeanne Lee Dell, daughter of Capt. Thomas Medairy Dell, jr., USN, and Mrs. Dell of Ardmore, Pa., to David Walker Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Harrison Taylor of Haverford, Pa. The Dells lived in Annapolis for several years and have many friends here.

Mrs. Pal LaMar Meadows of Annapolis last week announced the engagement of her daughter, Marjorie Jeanne, to Lieut. Comdr. Albert Gordon Hillberg, jr., USN, son of Comdr. A. G. Hillberg, CEC, USNR (ret.), and the late Mrs. Hillberg of Locust Valley, Long Island, N. Y., Miss Meadows is the daughter of the late Captain Meadows, USN. Commander Hillberg was graduated from the Naval Academy with the class of 1942. He is now attending the postgraduate school here. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mrs. John Rigg, of Washington, D. C., announces the engagement of her daughter, Mrs. Catherine Rigg Colhoun, of Annapolis, to Roger V. Laynor, of Elkridge, Md. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mrs. Colhoun is the daughter of the late Dean Rigg of Easton, Md., and widow of Charles Murray Colhoun of Ivy Neck, Cumberstone, Anne Arundel County, Md.

Mr. Laynor, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Roger Clinton Laynor of Elkridge, is employed as chief, alcoholic beverage division, under the comptroller of the treasury of Maryland.

Capt. Elliott Has New Post

Capt. Richard E. Elliott took over command of the Naval Communication Station in formal change of command ceremonies held Monday morning, January 17, at the station. He relieved Capt. Paul F. Dugan, who left on Tuesday with his family for Kodiak, Alaska, where he will be commanding officer of the Naval Communication Station.

Captain Elliott, who has also taken over Captain Dugan's Cheltenham command, was graduated with the Naval Academy class of 1925. Before reporting here he was commanding officer of the amphibious force flagship, USS Eldorado in the Pacific. Captain Elliott will be joined soon by Mrs. Elliott and their son. The Elliotts also have a daughter in college.

Col. Charles H. Gerhardt, commander of the Twenty-ninth Division of World War II fame, and now assistant chief of staff of the Second Army at Fort George G. Meade, was guest speaker at the observance of Gen. Robert E. Lee's birthday anniversary, held January 19 by the William H. Murray Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy. The Lee birthday celebration was held at the home of Mrs. John L. Chew with Mrs. William A. Darden as cohostess.

Prior to Colonel Gerhardt's address, crosses of military service were presented to two sons of the meeting; Dr. James M. Magruder, honorary associate member of Maryland, UDC, gave the invocation, and Mrs. John Tyler, recorder of crosses, presented the crosses of military service. Colonel Gerhardt was introduced by Mrs. Chester E. Lewis, historian and program chairman.

Mrs. Lydia Grundy of Oldham, England, and Laurance Dronsfield of Cypress Creek, formerly of Oldham, were quietly married recently at St. Paul's Church, Crownsville, by the Rev. John K. Mount, rector.

Drive Planned For Children's Colony in Israel

A campaign to raise $500,000 thi syear to finance development of a Washington colony for orphaned and needy children in Israel was announced yesterday.

Jac J. Lehrman, chairman of the executive committee of the Washington Colony in the Holy Land, Inc., said last night the District quota had been set at $75,000, to be raised during February.

Speaking at committee headquarters, Room 611, the Washington Building, 15th st. and New York ave. nw., Lehrman also announced that the group plans a special observance of George Washington's birthday, February 22, in the National Press Building. He said admission would be limited to persons who contribute $100 or more toward construction of the settlement.

Soft Coal Operators Report 50-Day Supply

The Nation's soft-coal operators reported yesterday that they have a 50-day coal supply on hand. Some industry members saw it as enhancing prospects of peace in the coal fields this spring.

The operators said their above-ground stockpiles totaled 70 million tons, the highest in nearly 10 years. They attributed it, in part, to the mild Eastern winter which has cut demand.

Labor Held Best Able To Fight Communism

Organized labor can do more than any other United States group to help win the battle against communism in Europe, W. Averell Harriman said last night.

Harriman, roving United States Ambassador for the Economic Cooperation Administration, said over the Dumont television network: "If we can get the confidence of labor in Europe, and break down Communist propaganda, that's the main battle."

FOR BEST SERVICE PLACE YOUR ADS EARLY

The steadily growing volume of classified ads in The Post, combined with the practice of many advertisers who phone late in the day, is making it difficult to devote the time and assistance to these late callers which is needed to prepare the most effective possible copy.

To assure receiving this help from your ad-taker, please try to call during the morning or early afternoon.

'Relatively' Speaking, It's a Funny Story

Reporter Jimmy Graham is often asked, "Are you related to the publisher of The Washington Post, Philip Graham?"

The answer is no. But when the Jimmy Grahams got delivery on a brand-new son the other day, Jimmy was tempted to name him Philip.

"That would have simplified things," he explains. "Then if anybody asked me if I was related to Phil Graham I could say: 'Related to him? I'm his father!'"

(P. S.: Mrs. Jimmy killed the gag and named the newcomer Thomas Nash Graham.)

MISCELLANY

Morris Katz, who draws those easy-to-understand charts on our financial page, was sitting behind two high school girls on a street-car recently. As the car clanged along, one of the girls was saying: "I've got three exams coming up, and I'm worried. I think I know my French, and I think I know my chemistry . . ." At that point the car (and the noise) stopped, and in a voice which was slightly too loud, the girl concluded ". . . but I don't know my religion." The elderly lady in the seat ahead turned to survey the girl critically, and then snapped, "Young lady, you should be ashamed of yourself not knowing your own religion!" . . . Every time I see Katz I think of the day the art department called him and a voice announced, "Mr. Charts? Your katz are ready" . . . Margaret Wallace of 1657 31st st. nw. would like to hear from some Rock Hounds, or even Pebble Puppies. She explains that a Rock Hound collects lovely specimen of rock, ore, crystals and such—and a Pebble Puppy is a small-fry version of same . . . Joseph W. Cheyney of No. 1 Walker ave., Gaithersburg, Md., says I'm wrong about the Capitol dome statue being cast in Bladensburg. "It was cast," he says, "by Clark Mills, in his bronze foundry right here in the District. Mills ave. was named for him." . . . On checking back with our library I'm told that District Liner Cheyney is absolutely right, "and where in the world did you get that stuff about 'Bladensburg'?" . . . Where do you think, you lugs—in the Pravda library? One of your reference books said "Bladensburg" . . . I have just received from the State Department the full text of a speech by one of its officials. The heading says it is an advance text for the press, and positively must not be disclosed, quoted from, or used in any way until the release date—which was 22 days ago . . . Bob Morrow's comment on the breath-taking news of Rita Hayworth's impending marriage is a classic. He says: "You might call this the introduction of an RH factor into an old blood line."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

On January 5, The Washington Post carried a Hecht ad about television sets. One picture showed delighted purchasers watching Mr. Truman being sworn in with his right hand raised.

But another set showed the same Mr. Truman being sworn in with his left hand raised.

Is this because the President is left-handed, or do we now have left-handed television screens?

Donald E. Ney
1324 Euclid st. nw.

Dear Don:

Inasmuch as these pictures were prepared before January 20, it seems to me the advertisers used some ingenuity—but slipped up.

I suspect they used pictures of a Roosevelt inauguration, but substituted the face of Mr. Truman.

Then they forgot to be careful to guard against reversing the picture.

As I saw it on the television screen, Mr. Truman raised his right hand.

He's ambidextrous in most things, but that would hardly apply to taking an oath.—Bill.

MOSTLY FINANCIAL

A news item quotes doctors as saying that migraine headaches occur most frequently in people who are ambitious.

Maybe so—but people without ambition have their headaches too.

FRANK IS EXAGGERATING JUST A WEE BIT

A recent news item revealed that false teeth are frequently lost on our local buses. Frank J. Kraus of 1126 16th st. nw. quips:

"With these rattletrap old buses they have in service, it's small wonder. They're enough to jar loose real teeth."

Listen to Bill Gold's "This Is Washington," the District Line on the Air, Monday through Friday, over WTOP, from 10 a. m. to Arthur Godfrey time at 10:30.

Leonard Lyons . . .

I REMEMBER THE NIGHT

When the Gibbs Sisters, the Siamese Twins, walked into Lindy's and the headwaiter asked: "How many, please—Two?" . . . When it rained at the 1941 inaugural and John Nance Garner said: "This rain is the first break the Republicans have had in many years" . . . When Johnnie WeismuHer, as "Tarzan," and Edgar Rice Burroughs, creator of "Tarzan," were booked to appear on the same radio show—and Weismuller's fee was twice as much as Burroughs' . . . And when Max Reinhardt, before the opening of "The Eternal Road," was asked by a decorator: "What's the best covering for these seats?" and replied: "Customers."

When Ernest Truex rushed into the Stork Club and said: "Give me a bar, quick, before the brandy closes" . . . When Quentin Reynolds, LL.B., Brooklyn Law School, asked Libby Holman, LL.B., Univ. of Cincinnati, "What's the Rule in Shelley's Case?" and Miss Holman gave an accurate answer . . . When Goldwyn gave his star, Brian Aherne, who had just appeared on Broadway in "Othello," permission to do a broadcast, on condition that he be introduced as "Mr. Brian Aherne, who has been spending his time between William Shakespeare and Sam Goldwyn" . . . And Gene Fowler announced: "Zanuck's foot is the Blarney stone of Hollywood."

When Barbara Hill had her debut party at the Persian Room, and the guests participated in a scavenger hunt—where the most difficult item listed was a traffic summons. The winners obtained one from a cabbie, in return for $10 . . . When Erskine Gwynne watched an El Morocco couple leave their table to go dancing, and he filled their oversized brandy glasses with water, into which he put two small goldfish . . . And when June Collyer's mother, after a successful eye operation, wired her daughter: "Eye is all right," and Western Union decided this was ungrammatical and corrected it to read: "I am all right."

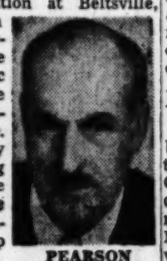
Atomic Energy Tried for Farms

By Drew Pearson

For some time, Government at the Agriculture Department's experimental station at Beltsville, Md., has been trying to determine if the same atomic forces that take life can be utilized to give life. Particularly they are testing out radioactive fertilizer to see if it will increase crop yields.



PEARSON

So far no increase in soil fertility has shown up, but Agriculture Secretary Charles Brannan has instructed his scientists to keep trying.

Another phase of atomic farm research, however, has been highly successful. By measuring the radioactivity of phosphorus in corn and other crops treated with radioactive fertilizer, Beltsville scientists can tell how much of the crop's phosphorus came from the soil and how much from the fertilizer.

This means that farmers of the future will be able to ascertain almost to the pound, how much fertilizer they should spread per acre in each crop year. Beltsville scientists call it the "tracer" technique, since they can trace the course of radioactive phosphorus through a plant like a tracer bullet over a battlefield.

As one scientist observed: "It's like finding another microscope for agriculture research that we never had before."

Rayburn's Real Friends

Bachelor Speaker Sam Rayburn, having no children, gets a great kick out of playing with them. Whenever he wants to relax, he sneaks off to be alone with some of his friends under 5.

That's how Rayburn secretly celebrated his 67th birthday earlier this month. Officially he was guest of honor at a row of distinguished parties attended by the great and mighty—including President Truman. But the party which Rayburn enjoyed most was given by 13 youngsters.

His hostess was 4-year-old Lindabird Johnson, daughter of Texas Senator Lyndon Johnson, though her 18-month-old sister, Lucy, turned out to be the life of the party by climbing on Rayburn's knee and trying to comb his egg-bald head.

Rayburn's knees were loaded with kids all afternoon, with his grandnephew, Tom Bartlett, and Sam Rayburn Worley—neither yet 2 years old—claiming first priority.

The party hit its climax when Lindabird brought in a cake with 21 candles and a basket loaded with birthday presents. The gift that got the biggest chuckle out of Rayburn was a quirt. In Texas quirts are used for getting more work out of mules, and the inference was that Sam might need it to goad some Democratic mules in Congress.

Note 1—President Truman came out twice to honor Rayburn on his birthday—once at a Capitol luncheon, later at a reception given by Attorney General Tom Clark, where the President presented Rayburn with a cowhide suitcase and called him "the greatest Speaker the House ever had."

Rayburn retorted that "even the President can exaggerate." Then, with emotion, the veteran Texan added: "Every day I thank my God for the country I live in and thank God for a leader who is still a human being."

Note 2—Significant fact: Truman left the Rayburn party early to attend a dinner given by Secretary Forrestal, the man who worked so closely with Dewey.

Silent John Rankin

House members can't believe their eyes—or maybe it's their ears—but the most unreconstructed rebel in Congress is now a subdued man.

Temporarily, at least, rootin', tootin' John Rankin of Mississippi has quit his feudin', fussin' and fightin'. Tipoff has been his strange docility since being booted off the Un-American Activities Committee.

After loudly announcing he would fight efforts to oust him, Rankin suddenly about-faced and issued an unctious statement promising to cooperate with House leaders.

At the Democratic caucus which formally ousted Rankin from the spy-probe committee, he was quiet as a church mouse during vespers. In fact, it was he who shut off debate by moving for swift adjournment.

In the past, "Silent John" would have been yelling madly for reconsideration, especially reconsideration of the vote aimed at him. This time, however, he said nothing, perhaps because if he had forced reconsideration, his angry colleagues also might have reconsidered their approval of his claim to chairmanship of the Veterans Commitee.

Merry-Go-Round

A determined drive is under way by the White House palace guard to fire hard-working Senator McGrath as Chairman of the Democratic National Committee. Truman doesn't share this view, but McGrath does. Overworked, he wants to resign. George Killion of San Francisco is best bet to take his place . . . House Majority Leader John McCormack has introduced a bill authorizing the Freedom Train to operate for two more years . . . Secretary of Agriculture Brannan has been snowed under with telegrams from farmers demanding that the Government build steel and fertilizer plants. The shortage is so bad that a Little Cabinet meeting was called last Sunday . . . A Capital newsman phoned Paul Herzog, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, the other day, but thought he was talking to the District of Columbia Pound. All he heard was a dog barking. It turned out that Herzog is the "best amateur dogbarker in Government," sometimes opens phone conversations to friends in dog language . . . Secretary of Agriculture Brannan has been working with congressional leaders on a one-package bill, covering all the domestic controls and allocations requested by the President . . .

BEHIND THE SCENES IN A BIG STORE

A NEW SERIES EVERY MONDAY ON THE BACK PAGE OF THE POST

What makes a big store tick? What goes on behind the scenes? What happens from the time you sign your name to a sales check . . . and your purchase arrives in your home? In the weeks to come The Hecht Co. will take you behind the scenes in a big department store. We will show you the drama, the life, and the people whose sole interest is to help you. For a department store is like a city within a city . . . with its own service departments . . . its own telephone exchange . . . its own medical clinic . . . its own movie studio. You will read about the men and women responsible for the safety and welfare of customer and associate. You'll be fascinated by the marvelous mechanical devices developed by The Hecht Co. to bring the goods to our counters faster than ever before. You'll meet personalities whose work behind the scenes, like an army service-of-supply, never make the headlines, but are vital to your every purchase. It takes a lot of people to make up a big store . . . and people are important . . . that's why you'll find a page each week devoted to their work and service to you. Read this story every Monday morning on the back page of The Washington Post. Learn what goes on behind the scenes of the Hecht Co., a great store in the Nation's Capital.

HOW MUCH STEAM DOES IT TAKE TO HEAT A BIG STORE? What makes an escalator escalate? Read these facts about a Big Store in this series.

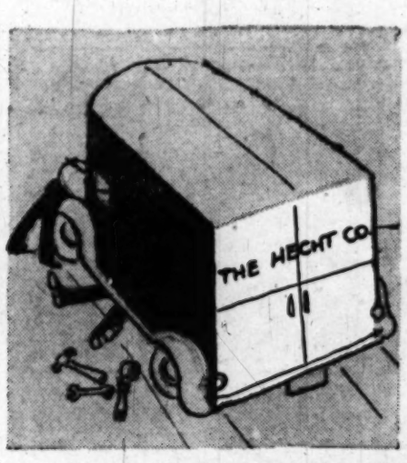
WHAT MAKES A NOVEL WINDOW DISPLAY NOVEL? How many man-hours each year are spent dressing up the interior and exterior of a Big Store? We're going to take you behind the scenes for the answers.

IS THERE A DOCTOR IN THE HOUSE? Not only a doctor but a fully staffed clinic as our chief nurse will soon tell you. Read her story soon to appear in this paper.

A SWITCH BOARD LIKE SWISS CHEESE? They may look alike but in a Big Store a switchboard is its life-line. Read about our telephone exchange and the many thousands of your calls handled each day.

HOW MANY CARS GO IN AND OUT OF THE HECHT CO. PARKING BUILDING EACH DAY? How does this service help the parking problems of Washington? Included in this series are many interesting facts about the parking facilities of a Big Store.

HOW HUNGRY CAN 2,000 PEOPLE GET? How much room does it take to serve hot, nutritious food to the Associates of a Big Store? Read the full page soon to appear devoted to the answers to these questions.



WHO KEEPS THESE WHEELS ROLLING? How much maintenance is necessary to keep a fleet of Big Store trucks in first class condition? Read the inside facts of a Big Store's delivery system.

CAN A BIG STORE BECOME MECHANIZED? There's a fascinating story in store for you when you read about the scientific devices developed by The Hecht Co. to bring you better service.
